MEXICANS MENACE VERA CRUZ

HUERTA THREATENS FUNSTON

THREATEN TO ARREST JOHN D. JR.

DENVER, May 4.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., arrested and brought to Trinidad to face charges of conspiracy to commit murder is one of the possibilities as the outcome of legal proceedings beginning in Colorado now, following the rioting and killing of men, women and children in the strike zone. The operators are threatening to cause the arrest of many strike leaders on murder and conspiracy to murder charges, and it is certain that if they take any such action the strike leaders will instantly retaliate with similar charges against young Rockefeller and members of the Baldwin-Feltz detective agency that furnished the armed mine guards and also against other such prominent operators as J. C. Osgood, D. W. Brown, L. M. Bowers and C. W. Babcock.

Governor Ammons broke down today as a result of worry over the Colorado strike situation and his threatened impeachment by the Legislature, and was forced to his bed. He was unable to prepare his message to the Legislature which met today in special session.

TURN ROCKEFELLER TARRYTOWN HOME INTO ARMED CAMP

NEW YORK, May 4.—Threats and protests against the course of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in the Colorado mining war which have followed him to his home at Tarrytown, where he sought to hide, following demonstrations in this city, have turned the Rockefeller country estate into an armed camp.

Three guards with automatic revolvers stand at the main entrance. All the entrances are locked and heavily chained.

More guards are hidden along the hedges and walls that bound the estate.

The younger Rockefeller, already much worried by the situation, is reported to be seriously ill today.

Upton Sinclair and members of his free silence league resumed the "mourning parade" before the Standard Oil building today. Sinclair's chief lieutenants were Max Appel, Nathan Messman and Marie Chaloupka. The pickets were reinforced by several recruits. A large crowd watched the procession and a squad of police was kept nearby to prevent disorder.

The I. W. W. carried their demonstration to Tarrytown and, although they could not get by the heavily guarded gates, they marched back and forth in front of the main entrance for two hours as a silent protest.

Memorial services for the slain in Colorado were held by the Free Silence League in front of the Standard Oil Building, No. 26 Broadway. The services, which lasted an hour and a half, were conducted by the Rev. William Miller Gamble of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Coytesville, N. J.

SINCLAIRS JOIN CROWD.

No more unusual than the service itself was the congregation which gathered about the minister. Anarchists, atheists, Socialists, Free Thinkers, men and women of all

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Federal indictments against Harold O. Foster, former postmaster at North Brookfield, Mass.; Frank O. Winchel of the Oxford Linen Mills of North Brookfield, William S. Edwards and Harry H. Platt of New York, officers of the Sterling Debenture Company, charging conspiracy to defraud the postoffice department, were upheld by the Supreme Court today. The indictments set forth that all four persons conspired to boost Foster's salary by purchasing large amounts of stamps through his postoffice.

Woolworth Safe Is Robbed of $500

The safe of the F. W. Woolworth Company five and ten-cent store at No. 1075 Washington street, corner of Waterford, was forced some time between 12 o'clock Saturday night and this morning and from $200 to $300 was stolen.

The police believe the thieves as the same who broke into the Cambridge store of the same company about three weeks ago.

Begin Work on Big Lumber Terminal

The Boston Pacific Steamship Company, it was today announced, will shortly begin work in Charlestown, on the Mystic side, on a terminal and lumber yard for the company's use. Fourteen acres along Medford street will be developed and the company will engage in lumber trade between New England and Oregon, using the Panama Canal. Two steamships, the "Atlantic" and the "Pacific" are being built at Fore River and will be launched within a month.

Find Lauret's Body at Nuevo Laredo

LAREDO, Tex., May 4.—The body of Porfirio Lauret, an American gunchman, who disappeared last November, has been recovered from a grave near Nuevo Laredo, Mex. Lauret had been arrested by Mexican Federals, who persistently denied reports of his execution, and until the body was exhumed the mystery of the Texan's absence was unexplained.

Edison Works on Operas for Nickel

WEST ORANGE, N. J., May 4.—Thomas A. Edison is again disregarding the advice of his family and working day and night to perfect the combination of talking machine and moving picture. "An opera for the workingman for a nickel—that is what we want," he said today.

Canal Will Open to Commerce on May 10

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Commerce will move through the Panama Canal for the first time about May 10, when a string of canal barges carrying the sugar cargo of the steamship Columbian of the Hawaiian-American line, now at Balboa, will be towed through the waterway.

BOSTON MAN FOR BANK HEAD

Richard Olney of Boston, former Secretary of State, has been selected by President Wilson as Governor of the Federal Reserve Board in charge of the new regional bank system, according to Washington dispatches today. It is also stated that Paul Warburg of New York is to be a member of the reserve board. The nominations, it is expected, will be sent to the Senate tomorrow.

Mr. Olney said to a reporter who went to question him about his plans: "I never talk to the papers. I have absolutely nothing to say."

Mr. Olney is one of the best known men in New England and is in the good graces of the Wilson administration. President Wilson offered him the post of Ambassador to Great Britain, but he declined to accept.

IN CLEVELAND'S CABINET.

He was Secretary of State under Cleveland. He has been a practicing attorney since 1859. He served in the Massachusetts House, was Attorney-General of the United States before he was Secretary of State, and is a member of many historical and scientific societies.

He is seventy-nine years old, was born in Oxford, educated at Brown and Harvard, and married Agnes P. Thomas in 1861.

Under the law creating the regional banks and the board, the Federal Reserve Board consists of seven members, including the Secretary of the Treasury and the Comptroller of the Currency, and five members appointed by the President subject to the Senate's approval. Not more than one member shall come from any one reserve district. The five appointed members give their entire time to the board's work at a salary of $12,000 and expenses. No member can hold any office in any member bank.

The members are first appointed for two, four, six, eight and ten years, and thereafter each member appointed shall serve for ten years. The President designates one member as governor and one as vice-governor of the board.

OFFICES IN WASHINGTON.

The board will have offices in Washington. It has power to levy assessments on the banks to pay its expenses and salaries. The board's powers are:

To examine books and accounts of member banks; to permit or require reserve banks to rediscount the paper of other reserve banks; to suspend and reserve requirement in the Currency act; to supervise the issue of federal reserve notes; to add to the number of reserve banks or to reclassify banks; to suspend or remove any officer or director of any federal reserve bank; to require the writing off of doubtful or worthless assets; to suspend the operations of any federal reserve bank; to require bonds of federal reserve agents; to exercise general supervision; and to grant banks the right to act as trustee, executor, etc.

BULLETINS

VERA CRUZ, May 4.—Advices from Mexico City report that the Puebla state government has seized all the property of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the city of Puebla.

VERA CRUZ, May 4.—Three American railway men arrested at Mexico City after they had boarded a train for Vera Cruz are now held incommunicado at Villa Guadalupe, according to refugees who arrived from the capital today.

They stated that San Luis Potosi had been sacked and abandoned by the Federals, but that all foreigners had escaped.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—D. Amelio Rabasa, the Mexican jurist, and Augustine Cara Gallindo, under secretary of justice, have been selected by General Huerta as delegates to confer with the Latin-American mediators. A third name will be submitted tomorrow.

10,000 FEDERALS RUSH TO ATTACK 7,000 U. S. TROOPS

WASHINGTON, MAY 4.—SECRETARY OF WAR GARRISON TOOK UNDER CONSIDERATION TODAY WITH MAJOR-GENERAL WOTHERSPOON, CHIEF OF STAFF, AND MAJOR-GENERAL WOOD A PLAN FOR RUSHING REINFORCEMENTS TO VERA CRUZ IF CONDITIONS BECOME MORE ALARMING.

THE CONCENTRATION OF MEXICAN SOLDIERS UNDER FEDERAL GENERAL MAAS FIFTEEN MILES FROM VERA CRUZ IS LOOKED UPON BY ARMY OFFICIALS HERE AS A THREATENING MOVE.

VERA CRUZ, MAY 4.—HUERTA IS TAKING ADVANTAGE OF THE MEDIATION PROCEEDINGS TO PREPARE FOR WAR, AND "FIGHTING FUNSTON" IS READY TO MEET HIM. REFUGEES REPORT TO CONSUL CANADA THAT GENERAL MAAS HAS BEEN REINFORCED AND IS PLANNING AN ATTACK.

As a result, the United States warships Prairie, Chester and San Francisco have moved inside the breakwater, where their guns command the hills behind the town. Every field gun in the fleet has been ordered taken ashore to Sanidad Wharf, to be held till needed.

From Mexico City comes disquieting news that Huerta is conferring with his army officers and inciting the people to hostility against the United States. For two days he has been in conference with army officers, ignoring Blanquet, the minister of war, and dealing direct with the officers.

Today he sent messages to General Gonzales Luque,

KILLS WOMAN AND THEN HIMSELF.

MILWAUKEE, May 4.—An unidentified man leaped from an automobile at Tenth street and Heath avenue and fired two shots in rapid succession at a handsomely dressed woman who was passing. As she dropped dead the man drew a razor and cut his throat, falling dead across her body. There was nothing in the man's clothing or that of the woman giving the name of any person.

LAME NEWSBOY SHOT BY WOMAN WILL RECOVER

"Louie" Gold's pluck, which has pulled him through fifteen surgical operations, is going to win his battle for life. "Louie" is Boston's famous crippled newsboy who was hit late Saturday night by a bullet intended for another.

The news that young Gold would recover was received with cheers and shouts of joy by a group of newsboys gathered in front of the Haymarket Square Relief Station. Like arrows the lads darted off into the highways and byways of Boston to tell the good tidings to the other newsies, while one of the number hurried to the injured boy's Dorchester home to tell "Louie's" mother about it.

The doctors said that the lad's rapid improvement was due solely to his indomitable courage. Yesterday he was thought to be dying, but to-day he is having lodged in such a position in the neck as to make probing for it impossible at the present time. This afternoon the lad was removed to City Hospital where an operation will be performed when he has gained sufficient strength.

The lad has long been the sole support of his mother and five children. This makes the case all the more sad. But a host of "newsies" have lent a helping hand, a committee has been appointed and the boys are putting their hard-earned pennies and nickels and dimes into a fund to care for "Louie's" mother and brothers and sisters. Two newsboys have taken charge of his "stand" and the proceeds will go to the injured lad's family.

DAY AND NIGHT WATCH.

Yesterday afternoon the newsboys were scheduled to have a business meeting. But they gave it up and one and all went to Haymarket square to be near the lad they loved for his good nature and sterling character. A score or more have kept watch in the square night and day, eagerly waiting for the word of hope from their comrade's bedside.

One of the saddest features of the lad's condition is that the shooting is the climax to a series of misfortunes beginning more than ten years.

First he had blood poisoning. He went to the hospital for treatment. A part of his leg was amputated. Since then he has been in the hospital 14 times because of the same cause, and now he is in the hospital for the sixteenth time. The newsboys say they never knew of a more pathetic case than that of the unfortunate "Louie."

The woman who fired the bullet is Mary Germinild. She was arraigned in Municipal Court today on a charge of assault on young Gold with intent to kill. But she declared with evident sincerity that she was sorry she hit the newsboy. She declared she intended him no harm.

INTENDED FOR ANOTHER.

According to her story she had trouble with a man whom she later identified as Germinte Quinto. She said Quinto had struck her in the face and that then she shot, intending the bullet for him. Quinto was in court on a white slave charge growing out of the woman's accusations against him.

Young Gold is one of the most popular of Boston's newsboys. He is known to thousands. For 16 hours every day he has sold papers —from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Boylston street subway entrance, from 3 to 7 p.m. near the Old Granary Burying Ground, and from 7 until midnight in Haymarket square.

Young Gold came to Boston from Russia in 1892 and has been a newsboy ever since. He is an expert at typography and has autograph letters from President Wilson and Vice-President Marshall in return for burnt-wood likenesses of himself which he sent to Washington. Recently he was chosen as chief of the art department of the Newsboys' World Magazine. He was to have taken a prominent part in the Newsboys' Club minstrel show next Friday night.

100 in Chorus of Roxbury Minstrels

A chorus of 100 will be a feature of the minstrel show in the Dudley Street Opera House tonight, tomorrow and Wednesday evenings for the benefit of St. John's Church, Roxbury, of which the Rt. Rev. P. J. Supple is pastor. Edward A. McGrath has charge of the arrangements.

Start Second Year of Common Meetings

The Common Cause Society of Boston has started its second season on Boston Common. The opening speaker was Charles E. Fay, on "Fundamental Socialism." The meeting was conducted on the lines of a forum, with five-minute speeches.

MRS. GERTRUDE MICHELSEN, missing

Southbridge woman, and her little son, Carl, who, ill in hospital, appeals to her to come home.

Wild his little son dangerously ill in a hospital, Carl J. A. Michelsen of Southbridge has appealed to the AMERICAN and to the police of Greater Boston to aid him in his search for his wife, Gertrude, who disappeared on Sunday, April 5.

Mrs. Michelsen kissed her husband and son good-by at the station in Southbridge and said that she was going to visit relatives in Webster, a nearby town. The next morning her husband received a letter from her, telling him not to look for her, as she was going away "as far as $100 could take her," the note read. Mrs. Michelsen declared her life had been a failure, but that she loved her husband and her son.

Michelsen, a veteran of the Boxer insurrection and Spanish War, has searched far and wide for his wife.

"I make this appeal to the public not for my own sake, but because two human lives are at stake, he said to the AMERICAN." The little boy in the picture lies dangerously ill in a hospital, and is constantly crying and begging for his mother. As the attending nurse says, 'It is most pitiful to see the little fellow constantly crying for and reaching out his little hands for his mother. There seems but one remedy—his mother.'

"Sunday morning, April 5, after embracing and kissing myself and boy as affectionate farewell, to go on a visit as I supposed, was the last time I saw her.

"I earnestly beg the authorities and the public to aid me in my search. I would request the ministers from the pulpit to request their congregations to look out for this little woman. Any further information about her whereabouts may be sent to me in care of the chief of police at Southbridge."

creeds stood reverently listening to the indictment—though the name of Rockefeller or of Standard Oil was not mentioned—of the great industrial corporation whose headquarters across the street echoed back the speakers words.

Upton Sinclair and his wife, Miss Elizabeth Freeman, Miss Sara Greenwood, another well known suffragist; Pierre Godin and others who have been leading the free silence protest were there.

Meanwhile members of the Free Silence League, armed draped with crepe, paraded back and forth in front of the barred door of the Rockefeller concern.

Pastor Gamble has a powerful voice, and his words echoed through the cavernlike entrance to the Standard Oil building as he read appropriate selections from the Scriptures, including the office for the dead.

It was a memorial service, he said, for the husbands, wives and children who had fallen because of the struggle for life. That which occurred in Colorado, he declared, and that which goes on in this section of New York all have a close connection.

"It is fitting," said he, "to hold this memorial service here. And it is well that the buildings are empty and the blinds drawn on this day of recreation and rest so that it cannot be said that those who organized this service are merely making use of the holy offices of religion to draw the attention of the occupants of the buildings to the things that are in the public mind.

MUST MAKE ANSWER.

"Our appeal today is not so much to people, to individuals, as it is to that deeper consciousness in all of us of a God, of an eternity, before Whom and in whom we must all finally make answer.

The Rockefeller home and church were patrolled by the "mourning squad." In front of the Rockefeller house and church yellow and red crosses were drawn on the sidewalks with chalk. Neither John D. Rockefeller, Jr., nor his father attended the church services.

Marie Ganz held for a hearing on her threat to kill Mr. Rockefeller, repeated her threat, and her lawyer served notice he would demand Mr. Rockefeller's appearance as a witness at the hearing.

Miss Ganz said: "I said and I repeat it now that if Rockefeller does not arbitrate the situation in Colorado he is a murderer, and I will kill him if I have a chance, be the outcome what it may.

"The only one who can make a complaint against me is Mr. Rockefeller, for threatening his life. What I said was my own personal wish and applicable only to myself."

Hundreds flocked to a mass meeting at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street to hear Upton Sinclair speak on "Shall We Murder Rockefeller?" and were disappointed.

They sat expectant until Sinclair appeared, and mildly asked, "Well, shall we kill Rockefeller?"

"Sure," yelled a youth with a flowing tie and long, lean figure.

"No," thundered Sinclair, "we shall neither kill the young nor the old Rockefeller. It would not do any good. Wages would be just as low and gasoline just as high. There are two Rockefellers, one a human being, inoffensive and rather likeable and the other a monstrous phantom. We intend to kill the phantom, not the man."

MYSTERY OVER BODY OF GIRL IN RESERVOIR

Police and medical authorities of Brookline are seeking the identity of the body of a well-dressed young woman found in the old Boston reservoir off Boylston street.

Attached to the lapel of the woman's coat was a seven-pound flatiron. The water was shallow at the point where the body was found, but with no marks of violence disclosed, the belief that the unknown woman committed suicide is accepted by the authorities.

No mark whatever of identification was found on the body. The clothing, all of fine texture, had neither tag of maker or label or initial of any kind. The woman's hands indicate that she was unaccustomed to labor. Her features were regular and refined.

The description of the woman as sent out by the Brookline police is:

Age, about thirty-five years; height, four feet eleven inches; weight, 110 pounds; slightly receding chin, medium complexion, black hair, slightly gray at temples, light gray eyes, small mole on the left cheek near the ear, considerable gold filling in the teeth.

The body was dressed in a one-piece blue serge suit with blue ruching at the sleeves and neck, black stockings and black low-cut shoes, a black straw hat with a black band and trimmed with a wreath of pink flowers, and a mixed gray coat.

The hat was found upon the bank.

The police believe that the woman deliberately waded into the shallow water after removing her hat. The authorities hope that the gold filling in the teeth and the marked physical characteristics will bring about early identification. No woman has been reported missing of late in Brookline.

Swift Denounces Colorado Killings

"Civil War" in Colorado resulting in many deaths, was scored by Morrison I. Swift, at the Humanist Forum. He said, "If a private citizen murders his neighbor he goes to the electric chair; a plea that he did it for the sake of honor could only save him from the lunatic asylum. The private duel is practically extinct, whereas the national duel remains the loftiest pursuit of the majority of civilized peoples."

ANNIE COMEAU, Salem girl strangely missing, from her home for the last ten days.

When she disappeared she had about $50 in money, and wore a gray suit, black shoes and a light straw hat.

Staff Correspondent of the American at Para, Brazil, sent to meet Colonel Roosevelt.

PARA, Brazil, May 4.—Col. Roosevelt, who is due here today, narrowly escaped being drowned, while he saved three lives, on his canoe trip on the Duvida River.

At one cascade, so Colonel Roosevelt telegrams to Dr. Lauro Severiano Muller, Brazilian foreign minister at Rio Janeiro, a canoe in which were three of the party was in danger of capsizing.

The colonel plunged into the river from his own canoe, seized the endangered canoe and, although he was dragged along, clung to it and prevented the three men from going over the falls of the rapids. Colonel Roosevelt's foot was cut and the wound which became infected still bothers him.

Burnham to Measure White's "Chocolate Cream" Baby Boy

Roger Noble Burnham, a Boston sculptor and cousin of the late Daniel Hudson Burnham, left today for Chicago to take accurate and scientific measurements of a boy baby some three days old—his god-child.

The baby is Roger Burnham White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. White, Jr., of Oak Park. White mother, under direction of Dr. Hirsch, court physician to the Czarina, had followed a course of training in the hope the baby would be a girl. She wanted a girl and planned for one.

But Dr. Hirsch's prescriptions of chocolate creams and candy were unsuccessful and a boy was born.

DANCE THE TANGO AT GYM EXERCISES IN CHARLESTOWN

Maurice Smith, director of the Charlestown municipal gymnasium, and Amalie Rauschal, giving an exhibition of the proper method of dancing the Tango.

The Charlestown Municipal Gymnasium, where Maurice R. Smith is director, will tonight give a demonstration of the work by the year's evening class of girls. The program will include marching, dancing, wand drill, delsarte and Indian club work. In addition Mr. Smith, who is a firm believer in dancing as an aid to health, will demonstrate the tango, hesitation and maxixe with Helen M. Baker, Juliet Lassen and Amalie Rauschal.

Mr. Smith has this to say of the new dances:

"I speak in defence of the new dances both as pastimes and as health producers. It is only necessary to remember that there are two kinds of dancing—stage dancing and ball-room dancing. Each should be kept in its place.

"There is no dance easier to learn than the tango. The hesitation is not difficult, nor the maxixe. The maxixe is the one of all the new dances which, if properly danced, gives best exercise to the whole body. You use the muscles of the trunk, neck, arms and lower limbs, and it is an excellent exercise."

CAILLAUX AND POLITICAL FOE FIGHT A DUEL

PARIS, May 4.—Joseph Caillaux, former minister of finance and M. D'Aillieres, who opposed him in the recent election of members of the Chamber of Deputies, fought a duel this afternon as the outcome of a political quarrel.

Today a court of honor, composed of seconds representing Caillaux and M. D'Ailliéres, today ordered the men "to fight as soon as possible, this afternoon if it could be done."

The dueling specifications called for pistol, each man to have two shots at 25 metres. Caillaux is noted as one of the best pistol shots in Europe. The decision of the seconds upset the verdict of an umpire who had decided that no duel was necessary.

The quarrel grew out of placards used by M. D'Ailliéres, a candidate for the Chamber of Deputies, upon which it was said that "Anyone who voted for Caillaux made himself an accessory to a crime." This referred to the assassination of Gaston Calmette, the famous journalist, by Mme. Caillaux, who is now in jail pending trial.

General Dalstein of the French army was selected to conduct the ceremonies of the duel.

SURPRISE GOWN STARTS FURORE AT PARIS RACES

PARIS, May 4.—A war against uniformity in dress has been declared by some dressmakers who sent their mannequins to the Longchamps race course to show off the latest creations in ultra imaginative designs for Summer frocks.

"The surprise gown," a hybrid garment with the front and back totally dissimilar, created a furore.

Another quaint new model is the inverted pagoda skirt with upturned accordion pleated flounces, very wide at the hips and diminishing gradually toward the feet, giving a perfect appearance of an inverted cone. This model, carried out in very thin taffeta or tulle, worn with a very simple tight fitting bodice and a modified Turkish trouser skirt in fine serge or satin, is gaining favor daily.

BEASTS IN SILK THREAD.

The gown which attracted most attention was made of black taffeta motifs with cut jet beads on the bodice and tunic; the narrow underskirt was entirely of cut jet beads, while the sleeveless bodice of thin black tulle plainly showed the shoulder straps of royal blue satin ribbon attached to the lingerie.

The latest freak is a white foulard fourreau gown, on which appalling pictures of fearsome beasts worked in brilliant silk thread. The skirt is slashed higher than ever, showing golden serpents on green silk stockings and golden slippers. A tiny brimless straw hat, devoid of trimming, completes this startling toilette.

Accordion pleats are the accepted new style for Summer in all materials. Bashes of soft silk in all the art colors are widely popular, and form a very pleasant relief to otherwise simple gowns.

WEAR APRONS, TOO.

Another new feature that seems to appeal to many elegant women is a silk apron, chiefly black or dark blue, made exactly like a housemaid's apron, and worn over a pleated silk skirt.

The mode for long canes and parasols is at the zenith. Small fortunes are being spent for old Empire walking sticks which are transformed into sunshades.

SUFFRAGETTE GASHES PICTURE BY SARGENT

LONDON, May 4.—A militant suffragette armed with a hatchet raided the exhibition at the Royal Academy of Arts today, smashing several glass cases and gashing a portrait of Henry James, painted by John Sargent, R. A., the American artist.

The woman was seized by attendants before she could do any more damage and was turned over to the police.

This was the opening day of the Spring exhibition at the Royal Academy, which is the most important of all British art institutions. Because of the attack upon the famous Rokeby Venus and other outrages of the militants special guards were posted about the academy to watch out for suffragettes.

On account of the size of the crowd the guards had a difficult task.

The woman had concealed her weapon beneath her jacket and with her catalogue in hand was walking through the crowded gallery with the appearance of an art lover.

Suddenly there was a crash of falling glass. The woman was seen violently wielding her hatchet in one corner of the room where there were few spectators. Instantly she was seized and disarmed.

"What do you mean by such actions?" demanded an attache of the curator's staff.

"Votes for women," shouted the prisoner in response.

In Bow Street Court she gave the name of Mrs. Wood.

GIRL DECLARES SHE IS 'POISON NEEDLE' VICTIM

Miss Gladys Bates, the nineteen-year-old girl who fainted Saturday on School street while watching the suffrage parade, is at her home, No 238 Adams street, Waltham, in a serious condition, due largely to the fact that she firmly believes that she was stabbed with a poisoned needle.

Dr. C. F. Brock, who attended her, said: "The girl has not been poisoned. It's a case of hysteria. No pin marks or abrasions are evident."

The girl does not believe this. "They poisoned me," she repeats. "Those two women who passed us had hat pins in their hands. I felt a scratch as they passed. I don't remember anything after that. I know I have been poisoned."

A woman friend of the girl says two women passed them with hats in their hands and that one of the pins did scratch Miss Bates.

U. S. WARNED BY FRENCH EXPERT OF JAPAN'S NAVY

PARIS, May 4.—Clear warning to the United States that the Japanese fleet at the present moment is practically equal to her own and soon will be superior is uttered in the Paris Temps by A. Rousseau, a distinguished naval critic.

"While the American navy's growth is now checked," he writes, "the Japanese fleet is still increasing in power. The recent political scandal at Tokio has caused the naval budget to be cut down considerably, but this is purely a temporary measure, and the Japanese people will never risk their national safety because a portion of the naval defence funds were misspent."

Rousseau shows by statistics that, taking into account the units now under construction, Japan has a superiority of 1.25 over the United States in battleships and battleship cruisers of the dreadnaught type. The tonnage advantage which the United States now possesses in ships of all types is counterbalanced by Japan's strength in naval artillery.

"The Nippo-American antagonism continues," he adds. "The first two stages of Japan's naval development ended in war; will the third stage have such an end also?"

GUNS LANDED, SAILORS AND MARINES HELD READY TO RUSH TO AID OF FUNSTON

SHIPS MAY BOMBARD HILLS AT VERA CRUZ

at Cordoba, and to General Joaquin Jiminez Castro and General Pradillo, at Jalapa, ordering them to report at once their strength and equipment.

The work of aeroplane scouts, who located 10,000 Federal troops in three bodies, all within striking distance of this city, gave first indication that an attack on a large scale was threatened.

American Outposts Strengthened.

At once orders were given to strengthen the American outpost at El Tejar, guarding the waterworks there. A demand upon this outpost to surrender indicated a possibility the first attack would be there. Cavalry patrols have been established to check the guerillas, whose encroachments on American lines are becoming bolder.

Huerta Seeks U. S. Protection.

Insiders know that the delay of the Americans in starting toward the capital has greatly embarrassed Huerta. Having failed to reunite Mexico, he is playing his next card toward getting American protection against destruction at the hands of the rebels. It was the hope of the dictator that the demand for the surrender of the El Tejar waterworks, would provoke an engagement.

The Mexico City newspapers are full of canards evidently bearing the government authorization. One says the United States cruiser Raleigh united and wrecked the gunboat Morelos' guns and machinery.

Another said Manzanillo had been bombarded and that two ships, one American and one German, had been destroyed by mines. One paper said a Mexican officer had been executed at Vera Cruz without trial. Still another says "invasion is certain."

To meet the resultant agitation among the people, the police are constantly on duty, and 500 picked soldiers are on guard to see that Huerta is not molested.

Funston's aeroplane scouts were reported under the fire of Federal sharpshooters soon after they had discovered a considerable body of General Maas' army hidden a few miles from here.

The total American forces in Vera Cruz today number 7,000.

NAVAL BRIGADE READY TO LAND.

Following the attack at the nearby waterworks, in which shots were exchanged between the Mexicans and United States troops, the naval brigade was ordered to stand by for a quick landing in case of further trouble.

Every field gun on every battleship in the harbor was ordered by Admiral Badger to be taken ashore today to take position on the Zanidad wharf, where the Twenty-eighth infantry of General Funston's army is stationed.

It is believed the entire naval brigade can be landed within an hour's time.

The American fleet has moved closer inshore, in order to be in readiness for any outbreak.

General Funston has ordered all available cots, tents and mosquito nets to be put in instant readiness.

This is thought to presage a possible movement inland.

FUNSTON REPORTS SPYING.

The whereabouts of the enemy has been ascertained by General Funston through his aeroplane scouts and other sources with considerable certainty, so that he is able to place the number of Federals at Soledad at 4,000, while 5,000 are at Jalapa. At Palmar about 1,500 are engaged today in throwing up defenses.

An unknown number, probably not large, are spying on the American outposts.

One marine battalion ordered to hurry east to El Tejar made the march under the blazing sun. Another battalion of marines and a battalion of the Fourth Infantry were taken forward as quickly as the rickety narrow gauge railroad and the patched-up locomotives could take them. At the same time, artillery and mounted detachments having machine gun platoons were held in readiness.

The threat to take El Tejar is regarded today as having been made by one of the junior Mexican officers, and not by General Gustavo Maas himself.

The outpost under Major Butler at El Tejar, which has been increased to 600 men with field pieces and machine guns since the alarm, is in a naturally strong position, easy to defend, but is isolated from the city.

SOLDIERS DISCOVER FEDERALS.

Lieutenant William E. Bellis of the Fourth Infantry, with a corporal and some of his men, proceeded to the break in the railroad, where it was torn up by the Mexican troops, and was astonished to find a squad of the Eighteenth Mexican Infantry Regiment on duty. The Mexicans were carrying hundreds of rounds of ammunition.

They were very friendly and informed the Americans that a troop train had gone out along the other line, and it was in that direction that the battle, if any, must be in progress. The Americans thanked them and retraced their steps to El Tejar.

A Mexican corporal during the meeting declared he did not know how far back General Maas was nor how strong his forces were, except that there was a party of forty men a few miles beyond the break in the line. Much smoke was seen along the railroad, and it was deduced that the Mexicans were engaged in burning the ties and destroying the line.

The only communication between Vera Cruz and Tampico is by means of the naval wireless instruments, and through these Rear-Admiral Charles J. Badger is keeping in close touch with the situation there.

SCORE BRYAN FOR FAILURE TO AID AMERICANS

Arthur P. Rice of No. 93 Winchester street, Brookline, just returned from Mexico City with his wife among the refugees on the Norwegian steamer Olaf, which landed at Plymouth, criticised the State Department for not giving American in Yucatan, Mexico, more prompt warning to leave the country before the occupation of Vera Cruz.

"The American invasion of Vera Cruz aroused the Mexicans against Americans all over Mexico, yet the only provision for ships to receive refugees made by our country was at Vera Cruz and Tampico," he said.

"Thousands of Americans were in danger in other parts of Mexico, as in Yucatan, where I was living, but all the notice we got was a communication from Secretary of State Bryan, through Charge d'Affaires O'Shaughnessy, advising us to leave, and we didn't get that until the same day that Vera Cruz was taken.

U. S. CONSUL FLED.

"Advising us to leave," Rice repeated. "How could we leave? At Progreso, and the only seaport of Yucatan, there was not a single ship, merchant or government, flying the American colors. If it hadn't been for British and Norwegian captains the only way we could have left would have been to swim.

"The United States Consul Gracey was in Washington. Vice Consul Germond closed the consulate and left for Progreso and the government quarantine officer also fled. There was no one to look out for Americans; no warships or American refugee ships in the harbor. British Consul Arthur Pierce at Merida, where we lived, deserves the highest praise for the aid he gave us.

"He had carriages go about the city gathering up the Americans and encouraging them to trains for the coast where they were received with equal hospitality on board the British and Norwegian vessels."

ANTI-AMERICAN FEELING.

Mr. Wiedemann, a German refugee was accompanied when he left today for New York. He said:

"The United States' policy of apparent leaning toward the rebels and allowing them arms and ammunition has embittered the Federals. Now the taking of Vera Cruz has created a nation-wide anti-American feeling that is very strong. I am afraid the Argentina - Brazil - Chili mediators have an almost impossible task."

MEXICAN ATTACK OVERSHADOWS PLANS

By W. N. TAFT,
Staff correspondent of the American at the White House.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The hostile attitude of the Mexicans near the American outposts at Vera Cruz, and the report from General Funston that about 10,000 of Huerta's forces are menacing the United States lines, caused much concern in administration circles today and cast a shadow over the prospects for early peace.

Conferences were held today between Secretary of War Garrison, Chief of Staff Wotherspoon and high army officers. The Secretary stated that no new orders had been issued for the army of occupation, but admitted that the conference concerned the reports on conditions about Vera Cruz.

Despite these over Sunday developments as a probable setback to their plans, and the definite refusal of General Carranza to agree to an armistice, the mediators went on with their work today.

The South American arbitrators maintained their optimistic attitude, but there were signs of doubt even in diplomatic circles as to their success.

The mediators believe that the delegates that the United States, Carranza and Huerta are expected to name to confer with the mediators at the latter's request, will be appointed within the next few days. With their arrival the envoys will be ready to take up the crucial issues between the United States and Huerta at last, and if possible between Huerta and Carranza.

The Constitutionalist chief's definite refusal of an armistice, however, is viewed here as an insurmountable barrier to an agreement between the two Mexican leaders.

Whether a plan of adjustment, even between Huerta and the United States, can be reached still is regarded as an open question. The delegates to be named by the three parties, however, are expected to be of assistance to the mediators in reaching a working base for negotiations.

Clash associates of Carranza, who have come to Washington, asserted that no mediation between him and Huerta is possible, and that any move on the part of mediators to include in the negotiations a scheme for the general adjustment of affairs in Mexico will re regarded by the Constitutionalists as outside the scope of the labors of the mediators.

EX-HARVARD CAPTAIN FLED DEATH AS 'SPY'

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 4.—Arthur H. Brewer, captain of the 1896 Harvard football team, one of the 259 American refugees who arrived on the steamer Marie from Manzanillo, had a thrilling escape from being executed as a spy as a result of the anti-American demonstrations at Manzanillo and Guadalajara.

"I was at Manzanillo looking after business of one of my ranches at Colima, when alarming reports began to come to the American Consulate," said Brewer. "When I went to the telegraph office they told me the line was closed to all Americans, even the consul. The Jefe Politico wouldn't even let me leave the city. Luckily I happened to know Lieutenant-Colonel Gonzales, who arranged for me to leave for Colima.

At every station mobs surrounded the train yelling 'Kill the Gringoes.'

"On my return to the depot for the second train I was recognized. To prevent my being killed the British Consul pulled out a small Norwegian flag and attached it to my coat.

"I got to Manzanillo on the second train. None of my danger had preceded me and I was the first to be taken off to the German steamer, which had barely left the dock when a troop of Federal soldiers came upon the run and demanded where I was. They said I was a spy and that orders had come for my execution. I was safe aboard the steamer Marie before they obtained a boat, however."

Brewer left behind property valued at $500,000. He has lived in Guadalajara fifteen years.

SCORES OF AMERICANS MISSING IN INTERIOR

By N. A. JENNINGS.

VERA CRUZ, May 4.—Some of the greatest fears here are not in uniform. They are walking the streets of Vera Cruz striving to find out what has befallen members of their families, marooned in the interior.

Twelve men and several women and children were reported missing at Jalapa today, in addition to the ten missing at Alvarado.

No trace can be found of 125 more between Guanajuato and Manzanillo. Twenty-five are hemmed in by Federals at Pacific Ocean ports and seven are scattered at Curenavaca and seven burned to death in Saltillo.

C. P. Dewolfe and his wife and two babies are at Guanajuato, as is M. E. MacDonald's brother. Mr. MacDonald said:

"The failure of the United States to intervene has caused the sacrifice of between 300 and 400 Americans."

W. C. Steele's brother, sister-in-law and two babies are marooned in Alvarado. His wife is missing in the interior.

M. L. Anderson's wife and baby and Franklin Rose's wife and two children are being held at Jalapa by General Navarette, commanding 8,000 Federal troops. Mr. Anderson said today to me: "I have lost already more than $100,000 and now seem to have lost my last and dearest possessions on earth, my wife and two children. I pray night and day that the United States will finish its intervention for now we have no protection from the savages."

The Federals have no respect for Americans and the Rebels are rapidly losing their fear of them, the arriving refugees report.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—American Consul Stadden of Mazatlan, who arrived at San Deigo, Cal., aboard the German steamer Maria with 259 refugees, has reported to the State Department that Mexicans took the American flags from the Consulate, trampled upon them and burned them. He and his fellow Americans had been given forty-eight hours to leave Mexico.

Consul Stadden said that the treatment given the Americans was horrible. Had it not been for the good offices of the British and German consuls, he said, many Americans in the Colima district would have been slaughtered. Some Americans arriving at Manzanillo from the interior were forced to pay one thousand pesos each to the military authorities.

"The proclamation forcing Americans out of the country reads as follows:

"The Chief of Arms of the State of Collima orders that I communicate to you that there is conceded four or eight hours from 12 o'clock today, April 22, for all Americans to leave this country or otherwise they become naturalized Mexicans.'"

DANIELS PRAISES CHARLESTOWN NAVY YARD EMPLOYES

Captain De Witt Coffman, commandant of the Charlestown Navy Yard, received a letter today from Secretary of the Navy Daniels commending officers and men at the yard for the excellent work performed "during the unusual circumstances of the past fortnight and congratulates you and officers and employes of the yard upon the success attending your efforts.

The department appreciates the excellent work performed at the navy yard and under your command during the unusual circumstances of the past fortnight and congratulates you and officers and employes of the yard upon the success attending your efforts.

The department desires to convey to all officers and employes its appreciation of the excellent showing made under trying conditions. The department in particular wishes to note the willingness exhibited to work overtime. This is patriotism in the concrete form and is the true characteristic of American workmen.

It is the display of this patriotic kind of patriotic spirit that enables the department to rest assured that in time of real danger the country's safety, which may depend upon their work, will not suffer at the hands of the officers and the employes of the navy yard.

CAMBRIDGE TO HONOR WAR HERO HAGGERTY

Cambridge is only waiting for the arrival of the body of Corporal of Marines Daniel A. Haggerty to do him honor. Mayor Timothy Good today announced the detailed plans for a magnificent public funeral, when full military honors will be paid to the first man to die on Mexican soil in the capture of Vera Cruz.

Former Alderman Jeremiah Corkery will receive the body for the city of Cambridge. It will be taken to the Haggerty home, No. 16 Harding street. There, if possible, it will be viewed by citizens of Cambridge, and later will be taken to the Cambridge armory to lie in state.

When the day for the funeral comes, Commandant Coffman of the Charlestown Navy Yard will send the Navy Yard Band, a bodyguard and a firing squad to pay due honor to the dead man. Over his open grave the buglers will blow "Taps" while the echoes of the last salute from the rifles of the firing squad are dying away.

SCHOOLS TO CLOSE.

The funeral cortege will pass through the main streets of Cambridge, and stores along the route will close for the time. The schools, likewise, will be closed for two hours, and flags will be half-masted.

In the funeral procession will march delegations from the regular army, from the militia, from the Spanish War Veterans, from the Army and Navy Union and from the Grand Army of the Republic, while Cambridge civil organizations will follow.

The body of Haggerty will rest in Cambridge Cemetery, where the city will set aside a lot for his last resting place. The funeral services will be at St. Patrick's Church.

The body of Haggerty started north from Vera Cruz yesterday on the armored cruiser Montana. The cruiser was given an impressive farewell. Through a double line of fifteen battleships she moved — the bodies of seventeen dead aboard. Every ship in the harbor—American, Spanish, British and the rest—dipped their flags to half-mast and the crews stood at attention along the decks.

PAUSE TO HONOR DEAD.

Over the waters of the tropical harbor floated the strains of funeral marches from the ships' bands. Every launch, gunboat, destroyer — every craft that flies a flag, paused to honor the dead.

The Montana moved slowly through the long lane of ships. As she reached the end of the line she increased her speed and drew swiftly away till she was only a black dot on the horizon. Still the flags hung at half-mast and still the sailors and marines at attention, sped with their eyes the departing ship.

Rear Admiral Fletcher, in command, watched them go. Said he as the last trace of smoke from the Montana's funnels vanished:

"They've had the highest honor an American can win—to die for their country. The deepest sympathy of all their comrades here goes out to the bereaved ones at home."

The Montana has a five and a half day trip ahead of her. She should arrive in New York next Saturday. There the bodies of the marines will be landed. Haggerty's will arrive in Cambridge, it is expected, Monday morning.

FUNERAL ON TUESDAY.

This would place the funeral on the next day, Tuesday, it is now believed. And after Cambridge and Boston have paid their tribute, a movement will be begun for a memorial tablet to Haggerty and for two paintings of him, one for the Cambridge Armory and the other for the family.

Since Haggerty's death scores of letters of sympathy have come to his father, Michael Haggerty. One from the Leslie F. Hunting Camp read: "His memory will ever be cherished by we who have served."

Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels wrote: "His patriotic courage places his name in the honor roll of our country's defenders."

Congressman Frank eulogized Haggerty in Congress. And the Massachusetts House of Representatives adopted this resolution:

"The General Court of Massachusetts hereby records its appreciation of the spirit of patriotism of this and of other noble men who have given their lives for their country."

DIED FOR COUNTRY.

Haggerty's sister, Cecilia, thus expressed the spirit in which his family took their loss: "He is gone—but he died for his country." The thought has solaced them in their grief.

Daniel Haggerty was Massachusetts born and bred. Brookfield was his native town. He was thirty-six years old. The Sacred Heart Parochial School at Brookfield taught him his creed of citizenship and service.

As a young man, Haggerty worked in Cambridge in the street cars and in the Hicks & Knowles pump works. July 24, 1906, he enlisted. He was discharged at the end of his term, with honor. Six months later he re-enlisted. He fought in Nicaragua and in Panama, and sustained and worthy service raised him to the rank of corporal.

Fred A. Bartholemy of Somerville was one of Haggerty's comrades in the tropic expeditions of the past six years. Bartholemy has re-enlisted and started for Mexico, vowing to write his vengeance for Haggerty's death in Mexican blood. Another old comrade, Haggerty's "bunkie," A. G. Nirbler, now serving on the Virginia, wrote the family how Haggerty saved his life when he was wounded in Nicaragua in 1908.

And Cambridge will sum up all this love and honor in a final tribute to Haggerty when his body arrives in a week.

YOU CAN'T BRUSH OR WASH OUT DANDRUFF

The Simplest and Quickest Way Is to Dissolve It.

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that the itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to preserve your hair, by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair more quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everyone notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

WILSON TO LEAD IN TRIBUTE TO THE DEAD

WASHINGTON, May 4.—President Wilson will lead the nation's tribute to the seventeen marines and sailors killed in the fighting at Vera Cruz and now on their way to New York on board the cruiser Montana.

Arrangements for the President to meet the Montana were completed today at a conference between the President and Secretary of the Navy Daniels. Following the conference, Secretary Daniels said:

"The President informs me that, if possible, he will certainly be on hand when the Montana reaches the Brooklyn Navy Yard next Monday, and he will preside at the memorial services to be held in honor of the navy's dead.

"In the event that press of public business prevents his leaving Washington, the President will write a letter expressing his regret that the lives should have been lost and his appreciation of the valor of those who died."

Secretary Daniels further stated that everything possible will be done to make the ceremonies impressive. After the memorial exercises at New York, the bodies will be sent to the different homes of the dead men, there to be buried by their families. The Secretary of the Navy stated that no steps have been taken toward the establishment by presidential proclamation of a "national day of mourning" for the Vera Cruz dead.

THOUSANDS ARE SHOWING THEIR LOVE FOR FLAG

Thousands of persons are showing their devotion to the flag and country by displaying the national emblem from the house-top or window. If you have not flung your flag to the breeze before now, do it today.

There is intense interest in the stories of Old Glory, which are being published in the AMERICAN. Letters by the hundreds are coming in daily. Each missive carries with it a word of good cheer. The young and old alike are interested and express their individual views as to what should or should not happen to Mexico.

Everyone from childhood on desires to show their patriotism by displaying a flag. In places where it is inconvenient to fly the colors, patriotic airs are being played and sung. Every theatre orchestra is playing "The Star Spangled Banner," "Dixie" is another piece which is being played throughout the city.

Among letters received are the following:

GEORGE SIEGEL, No. 60 Garden street, Boston: "I was born under the protection of the American flag. I like to see it wave from my window."

LILLIAN, PANSEY AND OMER BOWLEY, No. 3 Broadway, Somerville: "We three children, with our father's help, have put out our flag. Our ages are ten, seven and one years, respectively. The youngest did his part in pulling the ropes."

ANNIE G. SWEENEY, No. 17 River street, Mattapan: "I put my flag out and I told my chums to do so. They did. Under our flag everybody is used as good as the millionaire. God bless our flag. I hope God will give us peace."

Miss VERA WOODSIDE, No. 2554 Washington street, Roxbury: "Hang our our dear Old Glory during the war. I live in a large house and cannot put out a flag, but at my club's cottage in Revere there will not be a better flag than the one that will wave from our roof. Every girl, boy, man or woman should wear a flag on their coat."

MRS. E. J. ROONEY, No. 37 Fern street, Lexington: "Little John Clayton Rooney, six years, and his sister, Gladys M. Rooney, ten years, raised the flag at their home and insisted it as follows: 'I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the republic for which it stands, one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.'"

ETHEL M. HIRD, No. 107 Massachusetts avenue: "I promptly hung my flag from my window in my business rooms, believing that if one has patriotism one should show it forth before men. As far as I could see up and down Massachusetts avenue, mine was the only one to wave its beauty to the breeze. A Civil War Veteran's Daughter."

MARY DAVIS JOHN, THOMAS AND JOSEPH CORBETT, No. 359 Allston street, Cambridge: "We raised our flag today. Papa was in the Spanish War and he played 'colors' on his bugle for use. We will keep our flag flying until the war is over."

START CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN IN BOSTON TODAY

Boston's "clean-up and paint-up" campaign was launched today simultaneously with hundreds of other cities and towns throughout the country. The committee in charge of the campaign here hopes to "make Boston the cleanest of them all."

In his proclamation the Mayor set the keynote for this week's work. He insists that "better health, less danger of fire, and a brighter, cleaner and more attractive city will result if each one does his duty."

The proclamation sets aside four days especially for this city to clean up, with twelve days for the public works department to complete the work of removing the immense amount of refuse which it is believed will be accumulated as a result of the campaign.

For the convenience of people who wish to dispose of their rubbish, the following list is given of the days when it will be removed free of charge in different parts of the city:

Today, Jamaica Plain, Roslindale and West Roxbury; tomorrow, Back Bay; Wednesday, North End; Thursday, East Boston; May 8, South End; May 9, South Boston; May 11, Charlestown; May 12, Dorchester; May 13, Roxbury; May 14, Hyde Park; May 15, Brighton and Allston; May 16, North End.

A mass meeting will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the Elizabeth Peabody House, No. 357 Charles street, West End, on fire prevention. Louis K. Rourke of the public works department, District Chief Henry A. Fox and many other authorities on fire prevention will discuss the matter.

Keliher Orator for Spanish War Men

Former Congressman John A. Keliher is to be the orator at the United Spanish War Veterans Memorial services on the Common, Sunday, May 24. Police Commissioner O'Meara has issued an order detailing all the Spanish War Veterans in his department for escort duty.

PROTEST NEW FIRE CHIEF IN WELLESLEY

The town of Wellesley is topsy-turvy over the appointment of John P. Doyle, a Newton fireman, as the Wellesley fire chief.

Some of the townsfolk say the Selectmen were right in picking an outsider for the $1,200-a-year job.

Others are all-fired angry, have rung a general alarm of protest and are shouting:

"Wellesley man for Wellesley jobs."

The stir in the town over Doyle's appointment brought forth this defence from Dr. Warren A. Robinson of the Selectmen:

"There has been considerable comment over the board's action in picking a non-Wellesleyan for fire chief. Perhaps this criticism is natural. But the board only did its duty. We looked for the best man and finally selected the best man we could find for the job."

William W. Tallby, one of the strenuous opponents of the board's action, said:

"More than half the town is opposed to Doyle. We want a Wellesley man for the job. I expect an official protest will be made to the Selectmen. Moreover, we don't need a permanent fire chief in the town."

Veterans' Reception.

Department officers of United Spanish War Veterans will be tendered a reception Wednesday evening in Longfellow Hall, No. 214 Dudley street, Roxbury, by Roger Wolcott Camp, No. 23, of the Department of Massachusetts.

SCHOOLBOY NINES IN HOT BATTLE TO LEAD LEAGUE

JOE EAGAN ANXIOUS TO LAND RING BOUT WITH EDDIE MURPHY

JOE EAGAN IS SEEKING BOUT WITH MURPHY

BOUTS TONIGHT.

Gus Lemney vs. Rip O'Brien; Young Joste vs. Oscar Lloyd; Al. Reich vs. Jack Davies at New York.

By JACK CONWAY.

JOE EAGAN is an ambitious young man. The South Boston boxer would like to secure another bout with Eddie Murphy, who also hails from the Peninsular district, and he believes that he would be able to conquer him.

Eagan and Murphy fought at the Arena A. A. last October and the latter was awarded the decision after twelve rounds of fighting. The tussle was even for eight rounds, but Murphy forged to the front in the last four sessions and breezed in a winner by a comfortable margin.

A whirl between these two men would attract a big crowd, as each boxer has a large following. Eagan has been fighting at a merry clip during the past three months and has not been defeated. He says that he is willing to make any reasonable weight for Murphy.

THE writer has it on good authority that the Athn A. A. is willing to stage a bout between Eddie Murphy and Jack Britton. These two men were signed to battle at the Arena last November, but Murphy called off the contest, as he claimed that he did not have sufficient time in which to prepare for a whirl with the skillful Chicago boy. Danny Morgan, manager of Britton, has informed the writer that he is willing to match Britton with Murphy for a bout in this city. Therefore, if Murphy is desirous of meeting Britton, he should not have much trouble securing a date with the Chicago ring wizard.

JACK READ, the Australian lightweight champion, is seeking a bout with Johnny Gallant of Chelsea. Read believes that his ability as a boxer would enable him to outpoint the Chelsea favorite. Gallant would probably not refuse to battle Read if he were offered a match with the Australian at one of the New England clubs.

There are few lightweights who can punch as hard as Gallant. He is the Leach Cross of New England and is able to stop an opponent with a single blow.

THERE will be three ten-round bouts at the University A. C. in Cambridge Friday night. Al Shubert of New Bedford, Mickey Brown, who hails from Malden, and Johnny Munice, the Charlestown boy, are scheduled to exchange blows with three New York bantamweights. Shubert, Brown and Munice are all good performers and should make it very interesting for the glove men from the big city.

NO new "white hope" has been discovered for several years. All of which causes us to remark that this is not such a cruel old world as some persons would try and make us believe it is.

AL MCOY and Billy Murray are to fight for the middleweight championship of the world in New York on May 21, according to press notices received from the big city. Whodoyameanmiddleweight championship?

MCOY claims he is the middleweight champion as a result of his victory over George Chip. McCoy is only a second-rater, and it would be a shame to think of what a Ketchel or a Fitzsimmons would do to him. But, sad to say, we have not any fighters of the Ketchel and Fitzsimmons type. The writer, however, knows of several middleweights, who are far better than champion, who would be able to dispose of McCoy without endangering their lives in the process. Their names will be furnished gratis if they are desired.

Kramer Beats Rutt in Straight Heats

NEWARK, N. J., May 4.—Frank L. Kramer defeated Walter Rutt of Germany before 12,000 spectators at the Velodrome in two straight heats in the first of a series of match races between the American champion and the world's title holder.

Rutt and Alfred Goullet won the five-mile tandem race from Alfred Grenda and E. A. Fye by 25 feet. Fye won the handicap.

Yale Crew to Join American Henley

NEW HAVEN, May 4.—Announcement was made here that Yale will enter its second varsity eight-oar crew and the first freshman boat in the "American Henley" regatta at Philadelphia May 16. Captain Denegre is still rowing in the second boat. Crocker, who stroked last year's eight, has left the squad because Coach Rushton considers him too light for the work.

Yale Elects Treadway.

NEW HAVEN, May 4.—Henton Ives Treadway, '17, of Stockbridge, Mass., has been elected captain of the Yale freshman track team. Treadway won first place in the 220-yard dash in 21 4-5s., also second in the 100-yard dash.

Schools to Meet June 1.

Framingham and Clinton High School track teams will engage in a dual meet on the afternoon of June 1 at Clinton.

By WALTER CAMP.

SPRING football practice has become a fixed and accepted custom and is developing exactly along the same lines as is usual with any college team. At first a few men, kickers only, contested for caps in order to improve the kicking qualities of the backs on a team.

The next step was a little practice for some of the other players and in a season or two one may expect to see actual lineups and scrimmages the rule at many of the institutions. I doubt if this does any particular harm unless it grows still further so that we come back once more to a considerable period of really organized Summer practice.

If that time comes, we shall see much less over-trained before the Fall season is ended, and that will bring in its wake an increased accident margin which will prove unfortunate for the sport.

THE manager of the British polo team, Major F. Edgerton Green, is planning to have the ponies arrive in this country the latter part of May. They will be sent at once down to Locust Valley and put up at the Piping Rock Club. This is where the visitors practiced last year, it will be remembered.

Ponies from the strings of Harry Whitney, Lodin Stoddard, R. J. Collier, besides those personally owned by Phipps, Grace and Hilburn, are providing a good selection for our players. "Carry the News" has been probably the most heard of by the general public, but there are plenty o' other good ponies in the string. Of old timers there are Tenny and Little Mary, Jacobs, Lizette, Bert, Aeolia, Corker, Hullaring, Discretion, Syren, Gallant, Goldleaf, Helen C., Pretty Boy, Sweetheart and a number of others besides four or five from the English string of last year.

EVERY one is interested in the forecasts of golf this season and the following dates should be clipped and pasted in the memorandum book for future reference:

May 25, 26, 27, French amateur championship, La Boulie.

June 11, 12, qualifying rounds, British open championship, Troon and Troon Municipal, Scotland.

June 18, 19, British open championship, Prestwick, Scotland.

August 21, 22, Canadian open championship, Toronto Golf Club.

September 28, 29, 30; October 1, 2, Canadian women's championship, Lambton Golf and Country Club, Toronto.

IF everything goes well, the chances are that the athletics games held in connection with the San Francisco Exposition will include some of the best men in the athletic world today. James E. Sullivan, who is director of this branch, has just spent two or three weeks out on the Coast planning the campaign, both as regards program and conditions, and he is accredited with the statement that he expects no less than 3,000 entries.

One of the features of the regatta events to be held in connection with the exposition is the motor boat races for $10,000 worth of prizes, the run being from New York to San Francisco approximately 5,000 nautical miles. Contestants will be deep sea boats of sixty-five foot water line or over.

Another feature of the exposition sports is the probability of a straightaway 440 yards in order to see if some of our quartermilers can beat the old record made by Maxey Long on the Guttenburg race track fourteen years ago, October 4, 1902, which was 47 seconds flat, beating the record then held by Wendell Baker, made in 1884, July 1, at the Beacon Park trotting track, 47¼ seconds.

EVANS THINKS TRAVERS HAS BEST CHANCE TO WIN ABROAD

By CHARLES ("CHICK") EVANS.
Ex-Western Golf Champion.

Constantly I am being asked as to the relative chances of the Americans who will play in the British championships this month. Frankly, I am no prophet, and of all the uncertainties of an uncertain world the results of a golf match easily head the list.

We know something about the game of the American players who are abroad this year, and what they have accomplished at home. Some of us, also, are familiar with British courses, but what will result from the combination of American players against British players on British courses is the great puzzle. No golf tournament that has ever been played has commanded so much interest as this, because no other tournament has been so international in character.

From all over the country comes the exclamation—"I wonder what Ouimet will do?" or, the question, "Can America win?"

On the face of past performances Jerome Travers stands the best chance of all the Americans who will compete in the British amateur. He is four times American champion and he has shown conclusively that he is a better match than medal player and the British championship is an all-match-play event. He has every incentive to well doing—numerous American successes and a poor British record to be wiped out.

TRAVERS WELL PREPARED.

Furthermore, he has given himself adequate preparation and has spent weeks trying out the British courses. Then, too, he will have the efficient services of his fidus Achates, Fred Herreshoff, who went abroad with him and will remain until the end, decidedly Travers's chances of victory are good.

A great deal has been said about his weakness with wood and his illegal Schenectady putter. They constitute real difficulties, but the news from Great Britain seems to show that they have been overcome.

Now as for Ouimet. The people who consider him a mere flash in the pan are, I think, greatly mistaken. He is an exceedingly sound golfer, sounder than Travers, perhaps, but he has had much less experience.

To my mind he has a decided advantage that I have often heard called a disadvantage—he is the open champion and he won his distinction by defeating two of the greatest golfers in the world. I consider these circumstances a great advantage. When two prize fighters, one a champion, enter the ring you will find the edge will be with the champion and I think the same thing holds good with golf.

I believe the average Briton holds Ouimet's game in higher esteem than Travers's, for they believe as I do—that he has more playing power. Every one of Ouimet's opponents will experience a tightening of the muscles, and an extra degree of care almost always to their overdoing. But Ouimet does lack experience, something that Travers has in abundance, and therefore I think Travers will have the better chance. Both of these players, we may rest assured, will be perfectly prepared.

I do not think that Herreshoff will do as well as either Travers or Ouimet, although he has great possibilities. He has a wealth of golfing experience behind him and a bagful of good shots. He is a very fine player, but his mission will probably be to clear away material that might prove dangerous to our two champions. As a matter of fact, he has good enough golf to beat any one.

Parker Whittemore is another entrant from Boston who probably should not be underestimated. He competed in the British amateur at Prestwick when I was there in 1911. He is a very high-class golfer and is reported to be in splendid shape at the present time. He has beaten Ouimet at both medal and match play and much may be expected of him.

I think Fraser Hale of Chicago will give a good account of himself. He has a good golf game and I would not be at all surprised to hear that he has put out one of the favorites. I am not sure that his game and manner of play are quite adapted to the seaside conditions abroad, but experience alone will determine that.

TOLEDO GOLFER IN MEET.

Harold Weber, the Toledo golfer and many times Ohio champion, will be another competitor; his chief difficulty is a lack of physical strength. If that condition is overcome he may go far.

It may be wondered why I have not ventured a guess as to how far each player may go. One cannot judge the real showing of the golfer by the number of rounds he goes, for that will depend a great deal upon what happens on the night of May 13. It is in the "draw" that the great uncertainty lies. Every round seems a short test to Americans, and there is always a chance that several of our players may be drawn against each other.

My judgment is that Travers has about one chance in ten to win, and I place the chances of all the American players in the following order: Travers, Ouimet, Herreshoff, Whittemore, Hale and Weber.

Perhaps my readers would like to know what I think of my own chances. All I can say is that I am going to do my best under the circumstances and I leave it to them to guess what that may be. I never felt stronger or better in my life.

SCHOOL NINES IN HOT BATTLE TO LEAD LEAGUE

The victory of Somerville High over Melrose High in the Suburban League series has renewed interest in the struggle for the league championship. Somerville now holds the lead and is playing fast ball but skeptical ones still believe that the standing of the school teams will be changed many times before the season closes.

Somerville hit out two well-earned victories last week over Malden and Melrose, and on paper the game on Saturday with Malden High should be chalked up in the win column.

The red and blue has a hard hitting aggregation. The team has also been fielding in grand style, while the pitching has been good.

Fitzgerald has developed into a winning pitcher and Tibberts demonstrated on Friday that he could be relied upon to take a share of the work.

Frankie Downing, St. Angelo, Ford and Captain Jim Robertson are hitting the ball hard and driving in many runs.

MALDEN TEAM GOES TO PIECES.

After scoring a grand victory over Everett High in the league series, Malden High went to pieces and lost games to both Somerville High and Medford High.

Medford High gained a peg in the race by winning from Malden and the boys are now full of fighting spirit and they will play their hardest to finish well up in the standing.

Ross is the only good pitcher Melrose has, but it is too much for him to pitch two hard games on successive days. Ross pitched a great game of ball on Friday and defeated Everett High but, owing to the lack of twirlers on the Melrose High team, he was forced to go in and pitch against Somerville on Saturday and went down to defeat.

EVERETT AND MALDEN CLASH.

Everett and Malden play a league game on Wednesday, and Coach O'Donnell's charges will fight to get back into the running for the title.

Somerville will play Malden for the second time on Saturday. As this is the only league game the red and blue has this week, Fitzgerald will be saved for the contest and should return the winner. Everett and Medford play at Everett on Saturday.

ATHLETICS TO BE BOOMED AT BOSTON C. H.

The advisory board of athletics of Boston College High School will do its utmost in the future to develop teams of the highest calibre in all branches of athletics.

The baseball team this season is one of the best in the school ranks and it is the hope of the boys to win the State championship this year.

The team is the best that has ever represented the school. Bob Gill and Eddie Gill are great pitchers and should carry the team through the season with colors flying. Spillane and Maher are the catchers, Walker first base, Crowley and Ramish second base, Manley third base, T. Duffy shortstop, and Rogers, McCarthy and Bradley play the outfield positions.

The team will make its first appearance in its new uniforms on next Tuesday afternoon at Fenway Park, playing Boston English High.

Noble & Greenough to Have New Field

Noble & Greenough School is to have a big new athletic field, located at the corner of St. Paul and Freeman streets, if the present plans are carried out.

The Noble & Greenough committee, C. C. Little, R. M. Saltonstall, John Richardson and Arthur Lyman, picked out the plot of land, which covers about four acres. One fullsized baseball field and two smaller ones, one large football field and two small ones and two tennis courts will be laid out. The house now on the grounds will probably be used for lockers.

Star Runners Both Forecd to Give Up

NEW YORK, May 4.—Hannes Kolehmainen and Harry Smith were taught a lesson at Celtic Park. Both were forced to stop long before the finish of a three-mile run that featured the games of the Monument Club. After their gruelling race in the modified Marathon on Saturday Kolehmainen and Smith were in no shape for another hard effort. Smith had to stop just before reaching the two-mile mark and Kolehmainen seized with a slight lumbago, was compelled to leave the track at 1½ miles.

BRAVES AGAIN WILL TRY TO BEAT HOODOO

Once again this afternoon the Braves will try to chase the Jinx. Their attempts of late to perform this much desired stunt have been highly reminiscent of the efforts of a gentleman named Bryan to attain the Presidency of this country. He tried, but he didn't have the punch.

That's just what the Braves lack—the punch. In all their games lately they have played more or less like marionettes. Manager Stallings looks for a change. In fact, if there isn't a sudden shift in the Boston play, there's very likely to be a shake-up in the team that will surprise players as well as fans.

The Phillies will again be the opponents. If they show the class they had on tap Saturday, there is not a great deal of hope for the local outfit, unless there's a sudden burst of life.

Manager Dooin will perhaps chase his star pitching proposition, Grover Cleveland Alexander onto the hill, though with the Braves batting the way they have been, he will probably be inclined to risk some lesser light, with the needle pointing to Mayer or Oeschger.

For the first end of it, Dick Rudolph is the logical selection. He has not appeared since last Tuesday, while the rest of the twirlers who are in any kind of shape have all been bumped more or less in the past brace of games. Dick hasn't looked any too good, but then, neither have the other pitchers.

If Alexander does the honors, Connolly and Griffith will be playing in the outfield with Mann, whom Stallings seems to like pretty well, though he hasn't as yet showed any signs of ever becoming a hitter.

Resolute Shows Up Fast in New Trial

BRISTOL, R. I., May 4.—The cup-class yacht Resolute was given a second trial under the supervision of her designer, Nat G. Herreshoff, and she went through the test without accident, the results being declared highly satisfactory.

Wearing her big club topsail, she proved herself very speedy in the light breeze which prevailed and very quick in stays. The peak halyard block that was carried away in Saturday's trial had been replaced by another of the same material, an aluminium shell with a steel sheave, and all her gear worked perfectly.

Capablanca Leading in Chess Tourney

ST. PETERSBURG, May 4.—The eighth round of the international chess tourney, now in progress in this city, resulted as follows: Bernstein and Blackburne beat Lasker and Niemzowitsch, respectively. Tarrasch drew with Capablanca and Gunsberg with Marshall. The Janowski-Rubinstein game was adjourned. The leading scores are:

Capablanca, 5, Alechine 4½, Tarrasch, Lasker, Bernstein 4 each, Marshall 3½.

TY COBB'S COLUMN

By TY COBB.

Written for the Boston American.

THERE will be a lot of rejoicing among the ball players about the time this article is printed, because they will have experienced their first pay day of the season, or rather the first real one. April 15 is a new pay day, too, but we get only one day's emolument at that time, while we receive two weeks' pay May 1st. This may sound like a very trivial reason for a celebration, but almost any ball player can tell you that it is a real letter day.

Most of the veteran big leaguers have bank accounts, so that they do not have to worry about drawing their hard earned wages on any particular day, but there are a lot of youngsters who are down to a shoestring when May 1st arrives. The player draws no stipend for the training trip and, of course, he cannot work at anything during that time. The result is that he is strapped when he comes north unless he has saved something from the previous season or his Winter's work.

* * *

MANY players work during the Winter months now, though there are plenty who do nothing except rest from October until March. A variety of occupations serve to fill in the cold period and to keep coal in the bin replenished. There are a lot of funny stories told of the ways ball players find to earn a little chance in the off-season. One of the funniest I ever have heard is told by Clarence Fuchs, a happy-go-lucky fellow who has played in half a dozen minor leagues. Fuchs was hard up one Winter, and to keep body and soul together he secured a job in a shooting gallery in a small town. Now, this particular shooting gallery was run on a close margin and the proprietor saved money wherever he could. Instead of buying cartridges with bullets in them to use in his rifles he purchased blanks, which cost about a third as much. Of course all the guns were loaded behind the counter and the marksmen didn't know anything about the character of the ammunition they were using.

THERE would have been a riot if somebody hadn't hit the mark now and then, of course, so to make it look right Fuchs was stationed behind a curtain near the target and when anybody fired he threw small wads of black putty at the bullseye. This putty would make a mark on the painted target and the shooter thought he was getting results.

Well, the proprietor offered cigars for "ringing the bell," as they always do, and this proved poor Fuch's undoing. He got so expert in hitting the bullseye that nearly everyone who tried his skill got at least a couple of "smokes." The proprietor couldn't stand the drain on his finances caused by this lavish distribution of marksmanship premiums and Fuchs was canned. "My control got so good I lost my job," lamented that unfortunate employe in telling about it.

* * *

FUCHS also slept in the shooting gallery, he says, as he had no money to waste on hotel bills. He was very much wedded to his job, it seems, for one night long after the gallery had been closed down, he was awakened by a shot out in the street and got up and started the rabbits and other mechanical targets going. He always had associated shooting with the animated targets and it was just second nature to him to start them when he heard a noise like a gun.

RED SOX HOPE TO START WEEK WITH A VICTORY

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—Carrigan's band of ball players, known throughout the world as the Red Sox, who are to tackle the Athletics again this afternoon, are more worried over their batting averages than they are over the bad start they have made as a team. Nothing hurts the feelings of a ball player more than to realize that he is not hitting the ball. The only really cheerful man in the party (and he is batting poorly, too,) is Harry Hooper. Harry is the proud father of a baby girl and the smile on his face is a continuous performance.

The weather here is fine and the Boston boys are anxious to get a whack at whatever pitcher Connie Mack offers this afternoon. They feel that they are sure to start clouting the ball at any moment and they figure the clouting may come right now. Carrigan has three seasoned pitchers ready to work against the Athletics this week. Connie Mack, it is believed is not so fortunate and as the local team is not hitting the ball with its accustomed vigor, the Boston manager thinks he has a good chance to win the remaining games in the series.

It is now pretty generally believed among the members of the Red Sox that Heinie Wagner will not be able to play again. It is thought that he will be retained by the club as a scout and as an aid to Carrigan.

HARVARD NINE FACES A VERY BUSY SESSION

There will be no letup for the Harvard baseball squad this week, as three games, all with fairly strong teams are on the slat. Lafayette comes to Soldiers Field Tuesday, Colby arrives for the annual game Thursday, while the Saturday contest will see the snappy Amherst outfit battling the Crimson.

The team has swung into its proper stride since coming home from the annual Spring trip, and just at present is going great guns. In a couple of the recent games, the hitting has been somewhat light, but continued work at the batting nets is expected to remedy this defect.

The three Harvard first string pitchers—Hitchcock, Mahan and Frye—will each have the pleasure of starting a game. If, however, any one of the big trio is slightly out of kilter, Whitney, who is going better now than ever, will have an opportunity to make a place as a regular.

Work during the week will be devoted to perfecting the team work and getting the men accustomed to the style of inside play that will be followed out in all the big games.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

WELL, sed Pa to Ma last nite wen he was looking at the paiper, I see that the dear ladies has put one over on the sterner sex. Of all the pridikting fads I ever herd of, sed Pa, this is the worst. The wimmen now are beginning to wear colored wigs. Purpel wigs & crimson wigs, etc. Bobbie, sed Pa, can you beat it? & ain't you glad that wen you grow up you will be a man & not a woman? sed Pa.

I can't say that I see anything so terribully foolish about it, sed Ma. From what I have read of it, I think it is rather a pretty style. They are going to ware these differnt colored wigs to match thare evening gowns, Ma sed. If I am going to ware a purpel gown, I will ware a purpel wig, for instance.

For instance you won't do anything of the kind, sed Pa. I have never objected to any of yure styles, but this is one time that I am going to pro-test. Better anything than that my wife shud ware a colored wig. We wud look fine at a theater, wudent we? sed Pa. You with yure brite green wig, & me with my white, bald hed, sed Pa. There will be nothing doing in that line of hair dressing, Pa sed, & the sooner you maik up your mind to be satisfied with the hair nature gav- you, the better you will feel.

It is a very littel thing for a grate mind like yures to be exercised over, sed Ma.

It isent a littl thing at all, sed Pa. The principal is all wrong. It wud maik you look foolish, reddy for the looby hatch, non compos everything, sed Pa. Why, he sed to Ma, jest imagine how Mark Antony wud have felt if he had gone to call on Mlaeus Cleopatry & found her setting out under a palm tree, with a brite green wig on over her butiful black hair. Imagine how Barbara Frichby wud have looked leaning out of the window in Frederick town, Pa sed, waiving a purple wig at Stonewall Jackson & saying Shoot if you must this purple hair But your country's flag you ought to spare!

Wudent Barbara Fritchy have looked foolish doing her heroic deed with a purple wig? sed Pa. Wimmen, Pa said, they are getting no older fashioned very fast.

If I promise you not to ever ware anything excep my own hair on my hed, sed Ma, will you vote for us at the next electshun?

I certainly will, sed Pa. I give you my word & give it cheerful. If you will promise nevver to ware one of them wigs I will not only vote for you, but I will work in every way possible to get sum of my friends to vote for you gurls. Then Pa went into the libary to read the sevning paiper, & wen he was gone Ma looked at me & sed Bobbie, that is the way I manage your father. Now he is going to vote for our rites, & jest beckaus I promised him I wud nevver ware a cullard wig. Ha Ha. I nevver intended to ware one in the first place. It is so easy for peepul to get along if they will jest talk things over.

Then I went in the libary to get a book to read & Pa winked at me & sed Bobbie, did you notis how I managed yure mother about them wigs? I got her to promise not to ever ware one if I wud vote for woman suffrage, & all the time I was going to vote that way anyhow. Ha Ha, Pa sed. It is so easy for peepul to git along if they only try.

Dear Old Lady.

Twenty thousand dollars—such was the value of the unexpected legacy which Smith inherited. Needless to say, it made a very considerable difference in his affairs. Hitherto he had been earning only thirty dollars a week. But now——

Well, he proceeded forthwith to change his name to Smythe, and to do everything in tip-top style; such style, in fact, that his poor old mother—to use her own expression—didn't know whether she was standing on her head or her heels. But never one word of protest did she make—till the telephone appeared. Then she struck.

"No, Albert," she said firmly. "One of those things shall not come into my house in which I live—never! Look at them poor Hindoos it killed last year! Why, we might—?"

"Mother, mother, mother—my dear old mother," began the exasperated Albert, "you're muddling up telephones with typhoons!"

The old lady shook her head.

"I'm doing nothing of the sort," she said. "You can't fool your old mother! She may never 'ave 'ad none of your highfalutin notions, but she knows as well as you do that a typhoon is the Emperor of Japan."

Question and Answer.

Phoebe was bored. In all the six long years of her life she had never spent such a miserable day. Circumstances at last grew too strong for her, and she—she was one of those who do not often cry, but who, when they do, make no secret of it.

In short, Phoebe nearly lifted the nursery ceiling off.

Upstairs came Phoebe's mother, already dressed in her gladdest clothes preparatory to having tea with a friend.

"Why, what's the matter, Phoebe?" she asked.

Phoebe, standing hopelessly in the middle of the nursery, only howled the louder and refused to see anything cheerful about life.

Lifting the unhappy child up in her arms and cuddling the tear-stained little face against her own, the mother walked over to the looking-glass.

"Just look, Phoebe, at the ugly little face in the looking-glass!"

Phoebe immediately became interested and stopped crying.

"Which one, mother?" she said.

Bashful Bob

The Amusing Adventures of a Shy Young Man — By STELLA FLORES

No. 11—Fate Takes a Hand

IN all the weeks that Bob had played chauffeur in Orchid's home he did not manage to see her alone. Once, by the merest chance, he was called to the phone by mistake, to speak to her. She had told him sweetly that "Central" had given her the wrong number, then added that she would like to have the car the next afternoon to take some girls in the country.

Bob spent the next morning polishing up the car. Perhaps the other girls would wander away after will flowers and give him his chance to tell her of his love.

But when he brought the car around, to his dismay and rage, he found the hated Count was going, too.

He had often raged to find himself alone in a group of girls. But he found that another man didn't help matters at all.

He received his instructions in ominous silence, and started the car with his usual care. But when he struck a clear road he let the car out at full sped. The faster they went the more furious he felt at the Count—every one, even Orchid. He didn't know that the Count's company was as unexpected to her as to him.

Suddenly it happened—the car took a flying leap, and he was flung out.

When his head cleared he found himself sitting on a log—a rather hard log—but Orchid's arms were clinging around his neck, and in her eyes was a light that he knew would never shine for any one but him.

Little nettles scratched at his hands, and his hair was disheveled. But what did that matter? The Count had disappeared. Orchid loved him—and it was Spring.—STELLA FLORES.

CHAPTER FOUR.

Remi Meets Street Musician.

ONE morning about eight years later Madame Barberin bustled happily about the tiny cottage putting things in order. Outside little Remi, now grown to be a tall, dark-eyed boy, played and sang, all unconscious of the fact that he had been born to any life but the one he was now living. He was as happy in his heavy wooden sabots as he would have been in the finer and more expensive clothing that he had been born to wear, for Madame Barberin had lavished all the love of her heart upon him, and Barberin himself, although he had never loved the boy, was still kind enough in his gruff way. He had never given up the hope of the reward that was to come to him some day for having taken Remi home with him on that night long ago.

Madame Barberin and Remi had been alone at the little cottage for some time past, as Barberin had broken his arm and had been in the hospital for treatment. But they were expecting him back soon, and although money was scarce, Madame Barberin in her own cheery way had gone about her work with a song in her heart as she tried to make ends meet. In the midst of her tasks the postman brought a letter for her and as it was from her husband she hastily tore it open. It read as follows:

Dear Wife: I am about to leave the hospital, but my injuries have left me unfit for work. As we must have money, you had better sell the cow, and as Remi is grown, he never claimed him he should be sent to the home for foundlings. We cannot support him any longer.

Your husband,
LOUIS BARBERIN.

To give Remi up and send him to a home for foundlings? Barberin couldn't mean to do anything so cruel. And even as she argued to herself, the door was pushed open, and Remi entered. She smiled at him tenderly.

"Take the cow down to Farmer Poiret, Remi, and see what he is willing to pay us for her. I'm afraid we cannot keep a cow any longer." And she wiped away a stray tear with her apron as the boy made off.

Toward evening of the same day a big man with an empty sleeve hanging by his side pushed open the cottage door, and hurrying Remi roughly to one side as he attempted to greet him, spoke a surly word of conventionality to his wife. It was Barberin, but such a different man from the one who had left them not so long ago.

HE IS CHANGED

"What are you doing up so late as this?" he shouted at the child. "Then to bed right away, or I know something that will put you there." And Remi tearfully obeyed while Barberin stewed sullenly at the meal and his wife prepared the evening meal. The house was closed up for the night, and all was silent in the little room before Barberin opened his mouth in a word of speech. Then he carried a lamp over to the curtained bed where Remi lay to see if the child really slept, and, satisfied that he did, he growled out:

"I suppose you got my letter?"

"Yes, but—" ventured Mme. Barberin timidly.

"Don't argue with me, I tell you. See this arm; they had to cut it off. Nice fool I'd be to starve because of an extra mouth to feed. I won't have that foundling here any longer. He goes to the home tomorrow."

Mme. Barberin was sobbing softly as she followed her husband into the next room to help him into bed. And the minute the room was empty Remi slipped out of bed, and, snatching up the letter, which was lying on the table, he read the terrible truth for himself. Mme. Barberin was not his mother; he was going to be sent to an orphans' home. The thought was too much for him and bending his head on the table he burst into bitter sobs. Mme. Barberin found him there some time later and carried him tenderly to bed, soothing him as best she could.

The next morning Barberin set off bright and early to make arrangements for Remi at the nearest foundlings' home. On his way he stopped at an old inn down the road to think over his plans. Deep in his own thoughts he looked up finally to see an old man at the next table regarding him thoughtfully from under bushy white eyebrows. Three dogs played at his feet, and a monkey clinging to his back proclaimed the typical Parisian street musician.

"How is business?" inquired Barberin in a friendly voice.

"Pretty good," said the old man "I'm looking for a boy, though, to help me out. A pretty smart boy will bring a share in the money any time."

Barberin started. Well, why not? It would be better than putting Remi into a home.

"I think I've got just the boy you're looking for," he said, trying not to appear too eager. "He is my little son, and as he is not at all contented at home, I think I'd like to have him travel with you for a while."

The old man eagerly beckoned Barberin to come over to his table, and in less time than it takes to tell the two men had drawn up a writer agreement, and Remi was signed over to the old musician, who gave his name as Vitali, and who promised to pay Barberin ten dollars a year.

Barberin returned to Cevanon with a smile on his face, and when Remi would have run from him, expecting a blow, he spoke to the boy kindly and announced to his wife that he had changed his mind and that Remi was not to go.

"And now hadn't you better go down for those eggs, mother?" he said kindly. "Remi and I can keep each other company for a while." And Madame Barberin departed without a suspicion of foul play, while the minute she was out of sight Vitali was hailed from the distance, and soon made his appearance in the untidy little yard, his monkey still clinging to his back and his three trick dogs jumping friskily around him.

"This is the boy," said Barberin, drawing Remi forward. "Remi, you are to go away and live with this old gentleman, who has offered to take you off my hands."

Remi burst into tears of fright and begged Barberin not to send him away. He tried to run off in the direction that Mme. Barberin had taken, but Barberin caught him, and, striking him severely over the head, he sent him into the house, where he himself followed and fastened up Remi's scanty wardrobe in a neat bundle.

A moment later Vitali had taken him by the hand and was leading him rapidly away. Had he but known it, he had found a good friend, but all that he realized was the fact that he was leaving the only home that he had ever known—forever.

Her Husband Brought in a Letter.

How Often Do You Write Home?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THERE are all sorts of acid tests spoken of whereby a girl may judge if a man will make a good husband, but it is sad proof of the anxiety of girls to get married that none are applied.

A man comes wooing, or, more often, he shows himself in a mood to be won, and the girl in the case asks neither for promises nor credentials. He is a receptive candidate for matrimony, and less account is taken of his qualifications than if he were a candidate for coroner in a country crossing.

This is particularly deplorable for the reason that knowledge of the man involves neither an outlay of expense nor of time. The girls need only encourage him to speak of his home and judge him by what his talk reveals.

DOES HE WRITE?

He has a mother. If she lives in a distant town and he never writes to her he isn't fit company for a girl so far as the next crossing. A man who forgets to be considerate of his mother will treat a wife worse.

If he lives at home and never takes his mother out for a ride or to a place of amusement or is never her escort if he walks abroad, he is ashamed of her, and the man who is ashamed of his mother isn't good enough to be permitted to call at any decent girl's home.

There need be no other test. No Bradstreet or Dun devoted to discovering blemishes in the character of a man could find stronger proof of his unworthiness than neglect of the woman who bore him.

There is no excuse for such neglect. No man is too busy to write to his mother though every hour of his day be devoted to the hardest of labor. She is not a stern critic. She doesn't demand a long letter, written painstakingly and perfect in writing and expression; she doesn't frown at blots and look irritated at a misspelled word or a misplaced comma. The crudest letter ever written is in her eyes more beautiful than the most beautiful illuminated text.

A letter relieves the anxiety every mother feels for the child who has left home; it is proof of his love, glorifies the hardest task her hands may find to do, and shortens the longest of dreary days.

AT HOME

If a young man lives at home, and never spends a little of his income on giving a "treat" to the woman who has denied herself for his sake ever since the hour he was born, he hasn't any more respect or love for her than he has for the scullery maid. The plea that he is saving his money is no excuse. He will forget he had any ambition to save when some good fellow among his comrades or some good looking girl comes along.

The best husbands you know were good to their mothers. Those who treat their wives with every variety of humiliation a woman may know were unnatteful sons.

There is no better way to judge a man than by the way he treats his mother.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

"DREAMS," the learned writer has said, "are but the results of last impressions made on the brain at night. They are never important, as some assert. They bear no relation to the future, but are solely the outgrowth of what has gone before."

The man who goes to bed early and presumably fails to sleep hears many things the family never intended him to hear. Lysander John Appleton had retired early and, in a vain attempt to fall asleep, had closed his eyes.

The voices of his wife and daughter floated in from the bathroom.

"I paid ten dollars for this switch," he heard his wife say, "but don't tell your father. I got it on the installment plan."

"My, but this cold cream is expensive," whispered Daysey Mayme. "Two dollars for a jar that doesn't hold nough to plaster one ear."

"Don't tell your father," admonished her mother. "The men are such cranks."

There was more whispering, during which references to skin food and cold cream were frequently hyphenated by "Don't tell father" that Lysander John fell asleep with these words ringing in his ears and with the lonely feeling that he was shut outside his own fence.

He dreamed he was sitting all alone on an island of camphor ice floating in an ocean of cold cream while little hills of face powder dotted the shores.

He was lonely and cold, and when he called for help his cries were echoed by "Don't tell father!" "Don't tell father!"

At last a boat appeared, but the creature rowing it looked so much like a woman's hair switch that he was afraid, and jumped into the ocean to escape. Just as he was going down for the third time he was rescued by a life line that looked like an appliance for reducing a double chin, and when, cold and wet, he was pulled on board, the boat turned into an electric curling iron, and some one was saying in a voice that froze his blood, "Did you put out the cat?"

The next morning at breakfast Lysander John told his dream, and there hasn't been a meal cooked in his house since. His wife and daughter, being too apprehensive to take any interest in the kitchen, spend all their time waiting for a telegram announcing the death of some kin.

For, as everybody knows, to dream of a cat means the worst kind of news.

MAIDEN MEDITATIONS

A girl is foolish to throw herself at a man's head—BEFORE she is sure she can strike his fancy.

Money made the mare go—BEFORE more money for automobiles made her stop going.

A wife would like to be treated as a jewel—BEFORE she lies in a casket.

Some men go to Hell—BEFORE they have a chance to notice whether or no they like the scenery on the way.

A woman uses her lips for speech and her eyes for love-making—BEFORE she is engaged. After that, both are "otherwise engaged"—so the parts are reversed.

A thought came—BEFORE action it would be worth something.

A fitting in time saved nine—BEFORE dresses were so constructed that a yard of chiffon in place saved nine stitches.

A bird in the hand was worth two in the bush—BEFORE the high tax on plumage was introduced.

A man who is bored at home can go somewhere else to get sufficiently bored so that home will seem a good place to travel back to.

FOOLS AND THEIR FOLLY

There were fools aplenty throughout the Earth

Since ever the world began.
But the saddest fool is the maid who says,
"I will never be fooled by a man."

And the maddest fool is the man who swears
Befooled by no woman he'll be.
While the maddest fool is the fool who smiles,
"They are all silly fools—but me."

But the wisest fool in this foolish world
Is so to his follies schooled,
That he laughs as he flirts his jester's bells,
Why, it's rather a lark to be fooled.

FEAR OF REMOVING SUPERFLUOUS HAIR GROUNDLESS

Thousands of women now regularly remove every trace of unbeautiful hair growthe from their faces and bodies. It is totally unnecessary nowadays to have such disfigurements. While medical science knows of no chemical agent which will eradicate hair permanently without serious injury, it is an established scientific fact that El Rado will remove hair for a very long time; its action is perfectly harmless, simple and thorough. When the hair finally does reappear, it is finer instead of coarser, and can be instantly removed again for a still longer period. Just mix a few drops of El Rado, a simple application, and in a few minutes the unsightly hair is dissolved, the skin is left smooth, velvety, and even whiter than before.

El Rado is now practically regarded as an indispensable toilet necessity. Innumerable women use it. You need have no more hesitation, therefore, in calling for it than in asking for a toilet powder. Test El Rado on your arm; prove for yourself that it will do everything claimed. Your money back if you are not delighted. Buy and try El Rado today at any druggist's or department store. Or write direct to El Rado Laboratories, Inc., 1265 Broadway, Corner 29th St., New York, City, for free illustrated booklet telling all about it. Also information sent on request.—ADVERTISEMENT.

REV. DR. VERNON DENIES VIRGIN BIRTH OF CHRIST

A theological storm broke over the meeting of Congregational ministers today, in Pilgrim Hall, when Rev. Ambrose W. Vernon, D. D., pastor of the Harvard Congregational Church, Brookline, said that Jesus was a man who wrote poetry, like Walt Whitman, and that he was superman but not superhuman. He denied the Virgin birth of Christ and said people in Brookline would not accept any other interpretation.

"His face and the light of his face entered into every man's soul," said this preacher. "His light went forth and enlightened the world and gave the impression of his authority. The sight of his power was in his will."

Dr. Vernon gave statement why the Virgin birth was not acceptable to him.

This called Rev. D. A. S. Conrad, pastor of the Park Street Church, to his feet. He said:

"This whole address of Dr. Vernon's is unbiblical and thoroughly illogical. What he said about Jesus here today and Buddhism or follower of Confucius would agree with. But this is not the gospel that will convert people. It is not the true gospel. I stand here and agree with Luther, Calvin and a host of other teachers, down to Campbell Morgan today, who taught the virgin birth of Christ.

"He was more than a great teacher and we do not want him compared with Plato and Shaw. He was divine and it was not all in his face, as the speaker averred. I have no doubt that Christ was born in pure virginity, that he is the saviour and redeemer of the world, and no other gospel will convert the world. This gospel has alone converted the world."

Dr. Vernon said there were different kinds of people in the world and out in Brookline they did not accept the Virgin birth of Christ.

President W. J. Mackenzie of Hartford Theological Seminary said Dr. Vernon went too far with his negations.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Stanton declared: "We've had theories about Christ before this and they have all passed away. We want facts and we have them in the gospels and the Brookline pastor can't improve upon them."

1,000 Coal Miners Return to Work

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 4.—One thousand miners obeyed the orders of their leaders today and returned to work at Raymond City, Plymouth and Black Betsy. It is believed that 9,000 others who struck last week will return by Thursday pending the outcome of negotiations now in progress.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Consul-General Canada has reported to the State Department the safe arrival at Vera Cruz of C. S. Baker of Wollaston, Mass. He, with several others, will leave soon for the United States on either the Morro Castle or the Ypiranga.

Kenneth Goodwin, twenty-three years old, of No. 51 Paris street, East Boston, was in East Boston Court today charged with attempting to rescue a prisoner from Patrolman Martin Fallon on the evening of April 27. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $300 for a hearing Thursday.

Speaker Prescribes Bible for Brain Fag

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Speaker Champ Clark today prescribed the reading of the Bible as a cure for brain fag. "When I get brain fag I read St. Paul's Epistles and the Proverbs of Solomon," he said.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were stronger today, beginning to ascend at the close of the first hour and retaining the increasing gains in most instances. The improvement of Rock Island issues was significant, some thought, of a better outlook for railroad financing. By afternoon in New York gains included Rock Island common ¾, preferred ¼, Missouri, Kansas & Texas 1¼, Canadian Pacific ½, Southern Pacific ¼, Missouri Pacific ⅝, Reading ¼, Lehigh Valley 1⅛, New Haven ⅝, American Telephone 1¼, American Can ⅝, Steel 1¼. Amalgamated Copper, Smelting, Northern Pacific 1⅛, Baltimore & Ohio ⅝, Union Pacific 1¼ and Mexican Petroleum 2¼. The majority of these issues had made even larger gains previously. On a record-share transaction Louisville & Nashville rose 1¾.

The Boston market had opened quietly and had few features of interest. But one of the few was the activity of New Arcadian. Early strength again here included Alaska Gold, Greene—Cananea 1⅜, New Arcadian 7-16, New Haven ⅝, American Telephone 1, Butte and Superior ⅛, Calumet and Arizona ¼, Granby ⅜ and Mexican ⅛. Down also Maine was a point below its final Friday figure.

A Washington dispatch states that the Interstate Commerce Commission today took up for consideration the petition of Eastern roads for a five per cent increase in freight rates and that a decision is expected by the end of the month. This helped create bull sentiment.

IRREGULARITY AT THE START.

When the New York market opened prices were irregular and some uncertainty existed for a while, but the undertone was palpably strong. A correspondent says: "The unfavorable publication says regarding sentiment in Wall Street.

"Some very able financiers and notably those interested in the more speculative railroad issues, feel that this is a time to look to the opportunities side—that with securities quoted at the lowest prices in years, a recurrence prices on the favorable side, with every position what it is, conditions favor the 'bull' side of the bear."

During the first hour an upward tendency developed and at the end of that period the market was strong, although it was rather dull. In fact, it was quiet until afternoon. First hour transactions amounted to but 100,000 to 150,000 shares.

AMERICANS LOWER IN LONDON.

While calebgrams stated that sentiment had improved at Berlin, Paris and London, Americans did not rise abroad. In London they averaged lower and the market had a heavy tone generally. Canadian Pacific was weak, and it is said that it was sold on Berlin orders.

New York, however, ignored foreign influences and took part in the main. Steel was among the strongest of the usual leaders, and during the morning crossed 58. Reading and Missouri Pacific made good gains. There was bullish sentiment manifested towards Union Pacific, Rock Island common and several of the prominent coppers were firm. The Anaconda report, showing earnings of $2.80 per share last year were only $2.60, compared with $3.66 for 1912, had little bear affect.

The engagement of gold for shipment to Paris had no immediate influence and further exportations are looked for, if the exchange rate remains as strong as at present.

MISSOURI PACIFIC A FEATURE.

When the market opened Missouri Pacific again became a feature, beginning at 19⅜ against 19¾ at the close on Saturday, and selling above 20 within fifteen minutes. It was believed that this issue is being accumulated by interests strong enough to meet all its financial needs.

As to the character of recent buying of this and other stocks the opinion is that some large operators are holding firmly to issues they bought recently at low prices, and it is assumed from this that they expect the present upturn to attain a higher level. News regarding the threatening attitude of Mexicans outside of Vera Cruz was not ignored, it appeared. Reports from Washington were to the effect that President Wilson, in his name members of the Federal Reserve Board soon and that his selections would be given confidence in the new currency system. This impression was perhaps the most potent bull factor of the day.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The London copper warrants market was easy this morning and at noon were 6s 7d 5 and sold futures 2s. 6d. At the close spot had declined 5s. and futures 3s. 9d. more.

Pullman car department earnings showed a decrease of approximately $400,000 for the first quarter of this year, about half of the same being during March. In April earnings increased nearly $77,000.

The New England Telephone & Telegraph Company reports for 1913 that its gross increased $1,348,646, its operating expenses $973,857, its net $45,273 and its dividends $205,115, while its surplus decreased $159,746.

Last year 13,401,316 pounds of chicle valued at $5,119,586, was imported by Americans and from it was made practically all the gum chewed in the United States. It is estimated that 1,300,000,000 pieces of gum, averaging at retail cost one cent apiece, were manufactured in this country last year.

Anaconda's net earnings for 1913 were $11,123,4 or $2.60 per share, compared with $15,836,334, or $3.66 per share in 1912. After payment of dividends amounting to $12,997,500, a deficit of $1,874,165 resulted, compared with surplus of $5,925,084 in 1912.

An assessment of $1 a share has been levied on Kewcenaw Copper stock.

The Boston bank statement shows surplus reserve increased $938,143. The New York there was $4,648,857 decrease.

The April output for the Shannon property was 1,012,000 pounds of blister copper.

April importations of precious metals at New York were valued at $1,710,375 less than importations for the same 1912 month.

A Safety Valve for an Engine —Free Speech for a People

Look Out for an Explosion if You Omit the Safety Valve or Forbid the Free Speech.

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

Common sense was shown the other day when men with a grievance were permitted to talk to each other and those who cared to listen.

The least that a man can ask is that he be permitted to TELL what he feels—if he does not incite or practice violence against others.

This country has occasionally imitated Russia and other foolish places in the effort to prevent free speech.

It is a thing that cannot be done. The free speech which you forbid today may find violent expression in a few moments of action tomorrow. Or it may find expression later in long-drawn-out quarrels and revolutions.

The speech which is really FREE, which recognizes a man's right to voice his grievances and express his emotions, HARMS NOBODY.

Nations have been destroyed not by free speech, but by the denial of free speech. Russia will prove that one day, as other countries have proved it in the past.

The English for years have realized and wisely applied the value of the free speech idea.

You ride along the drive in Hyde Park and see the very rich and prosperous happy and free from care. You move a few feet to the right or the left and canter along the soft dirt of Rotten Row and you find English men and women bumping up and down on horseback, for their livers, also free from care.

You go a few more feet—about twenty yards over on the grass—and you find earnest gentlemen with loose beards and greasy waistcoats telling their fellows that nobody ought to have a carriage and nobody certainly ought to have a saddle horse—as long as the orator hasn't got it.

You see not far away the palace in which the King lives.

And, standing on a chair beside you, you hear a gentleman saying that he proposes to remove the King from his palace without loss of time.

If the gentleman who is going to remove the King gets very near to one of the walks and obstructs the traffic a policeman comes over. But that policeman has different instructions or different ideas than those which sometimes animate the American police.

The London policeman does not rush up and club the gentleman who says he is going to remove the King and do away with private property.

He says good-naturedly: "'Old on, you can remove the King just as well a few feet farther over and not block the traffic. Move over, please."

And the gentleman who intends to remove the King, but who knows that the policeman means exactly what he says, moves over and continues his destruction of royalty on a spot where he does not interfere with others.

A little boy invented the safety valve for engines. It was his business to watch the steam pressure and let the steam off when the pressure got too high. But he wanted to play at marbles and other games free from worry. And he invented the safety valve.

Public men in our country ought to have sense enough to do for the people—a very dangerous and explosive steam engine—what that little English lad did for the steam engine of metal.

The State Cannot Spare a Public Servant Like George W. Anderson

The movement to compel all the members of the Public Service Commission to give all their time to the duties of the Commission looks very much like an attempt to force out George W. Anderson. Not another State commission is under such requirement. Mr. Anderson's independence, courage and ability have not pleased the railroads which this commission is intended to regulate, and it has been noticeable lately that even in Democratic quarters there has developed a disposition to say unfriendly things about him.

The fact that his sterling qualities have won him the confidence of Governor Walsh, and that he will not occupy himself with the annoyances of petty partisanship, may account for occasional criticism of Mr. Anderson from political quarters. Usually a Democratic politician, WHEN HE IS LET ALONE, will fuss and fume, but will do nothing harmful. But when we discover Democratic politicians giving away public rights and attacking valuable public servants who have earned the dislike of the corporations, we can conclude with a large degree of safety that POLITICS is not the motive. In these cases it is fairly certain that the crafty hand of the corporation is moving these gentlemen like so many political pawns.

The public might be disposed hastily to say that a man on the Public Service Commission ought to give his whole time to his duties, because they are of the greatest importance.

It is true that their importance cannot be exaggerated. But sometimes the importance of an able and courageous man, GIVING ALL THE TIME NECESSARY to the CRITICAL cases, is worth more to the public than all of the rest of the commission, giving all their time to their duties.

Mr. Anderson alone, of the five commissioners, opposed the stock-watering job attempted by the New Haven in the $67,000,000 bond deal which the Supreme Court, agreeing with the view of the law which Mr. Anderson took, finally overthrew. Mr. Anderson has refused to allow the Boston & Maine Railroad to be milked by the scandalous Hampden Railroad deal.

His services in these two important matters during his brief period on the commission were worth more than all the time of all the members on all the questions which came before the commission during his term of service.

He can afford and DOES give all the time NECESSARY to its IMPORTANT concerns. He can afford and does give more time and HARD, VALUABLE thinking than most of his colleagues on the Railroad Commission.

The bill which has just passed the always corporation controlled Senate is a cunning drive at Mr. Anderson, a wretched attempt to deprive the State of a valuable and intrepid public servant.

WAITING FOR THE VERDICT

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service

The Senate will soon finally decide between the United States on the one hand and England and the railroads on the other in the Panama Canal tolls case. Mr. McCay here shows Uncle Sam and the parties opposed to him waiting to learn whether the Senators will uphold his interests, or those of the Railroads and John Bull, who are also awaiting the decision.

The Two Sisters

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER LVIII.

A LETTER came for Julia Marin the early morning mail.

She read it as she ate her frugal breakfast of rolls and coffee. Its contents brought a glow to her cheeks and made the dull routine of the working day before her seem bright. Caryl was still asleep, or she might have guessed from her sister's happy look who was the author of the epistle.

"Dear Miss Marvin," Delaine wrote: "Ages and aeons have dragged by since I saw you last. Personally, when I have a friend I feel that I have a right to see him or her every few days, and I dare to hope that you will sympathize with my attitude sufficiently to grant me a half hour's chat this afternoon. Won't you change the grubby little park into an oasis by meeting me there by the same old bench at the same old time? I shall pray to Allah for clear weather, but if it rains prepare to be kidnaped again.

"Faithfully,

"KELLEY DELANE."

He was waiting for her when she entered the park late that afternoon, and the girl forgot her aching feet and tired back as he took her hand in his firm grasp.

"Thank you for coming," he said. "You look tired, and I don't like that. It's rather late for afternoon tea, but all the same you and I are going across the street and get some. I shan't listen to any protests from your New England conscience, so come peaceably unless you want me to be disagreeable."

Heedless of her feeble remonstrances, he guided her toward the restaurant. When they were seated at a small white table, he drew a sigh of relief.

"There!" he exclaimed triumphantly, "I've been plotting this for twenty-four hours and I'm proud of my success."

"Do you always get what you want?" the girl asked later with a smile, as they sipped their tea.

"No," he answered seriously, "if I did, I would make you stop work and would send you away to a big farm my uncle has up in Vermont, and you should live out in the Autumn fields twelve hours a day and sleep the other twelve. You don't look a bit well Miss Marvin. What's the matter? Is anything worrying you?"

"Nothing more than usual," she answered with affected lightness. But he detected the reserve in her tone and looked at her keenly before speaking again.

"I don't want to intrude," he said at last, "but if there's anything that I could do to help you, you aren't playing fair if you don't let me know. Perhaps you are tired of hearing me make that statement—but I mean it."

"There's really nothing unusual the matter," Julia insisted, "except that, as I told you the other day, I can't help feeling uneasy about my little sister, and perhaps that is foolish of me."

"Has Somerdyke ——" Delaine began, but she interrupted him.

"No; it isn't Mr. Somerdyke," she assured him. "Caryl's new friend is a Miss Dora Redfield. Do you know her?"

"I know her quite well," Delaine replied. "She and Somerdyke are engaged, I believe."

"Indeed!" returned Julia. She was astonished at his possession of information that Caryl had begged her to keep from him. "Miss Redfield has taken a fancy to Caryl," she added.

There was a moment's silence. "Ah!" the man breathed. Then as the girl did not speak, he said: "Go on with what you were saying. What's the matter?"

"You looked startled," Julia accused.

"Did I?" the man evaded. "I did not mean to."

"Well, Miss Redfield," continued the girl, "has taken a fancy to Caryl, as I just said, and so has her brother. Do you know him, too?"

"Yes, I know him very well," the man replied.

"Mr. Redfield has been quite attentive to my sister," Julia informed him. "Night before last Caryl was out with him and his sister until quite late. is—is Mr. Redfield the sort of person my sister would be safe with, Mr. Delaine?"

"Yes," answered Delaine. He comforted himself with the conviction that his face did not reflect his amazement. For he had seen John Redfield sail for Europe two weeks ago.

"I am glad you know that he is all right," Julia observed innocently. "As long as you consider him a gentleman, I shall not be uneasy any more."

"No," Delaine repeated mechanically, "don't be uneasy."

The abstracted look that had come to his face when John Redfield was first mentioned remained, but he said nothing more of Caryl or her new acquaintances, and was his usual bright, attractive self throughout their stay in the little restaurant and on their way to Mrs. Halleran's house, to which place he insisted on escorting his companion.

At the lodging house door Julia held out her hand. "Thank you, Mr. Delaine," she said simply, as he returned her cordial hand clasp. "You have given me the pleasantest hour I have had since I came to Boston. It is good to feel there is some one to whom I can talk things out."

Delaine flushed happily, but there was only frank friendship in his eyes as he answered her.

"It makes me very glad to think that you are willing to confide in me, Miss Marvin," he rejoined. "Good-bye, and please let me see you again soon."

Something beside mere friendship dimmed his eyes as he walked away.

"Poor little girl," he muttered. "Poor, brave little girl!"

"Where have you been, little sister?" Julia asked affectionately.

"Out with the Redfields?"

"Yes," Caryl answered steadily. "Out for a drive in the park with the Redfields.

(To Be Continued.)

Questions Answered

THE DRAMA

F. M.—The drama had its birth in Greece, especially in Athens, the immortal capital of the little State of Attica. Among the creators were Aeschylus, Sophocles, Aristophanes and their contemporaries and successors. Upon the overthrow of the ancient Greco-Roman civilization followed the Dark Ages, when for a thousand years or so the stage ceased to exist. It had its revival with the literary renaissance of the fourteenth century, and bloomed out again in all its glory under the leadership of Shakespeare and others in the Elizabethan age.

DOES THE SUN MOVE?

J. W.—Yes, sir, in the language of the late Rev. Jasper, of Richmond, "de sun do move." With his family of children and grandchildren, the planets, moons, etc., the sun is steadily moving on like an everlasting nomad. His motion is supposed to be around a point in the Pleiades (seven stars), and from what we can gather from the "God-fathers of Heaven's lights" his speed is considerably greater than that of the fastest express train. Mr. Garrett P. Servis' little book on astronomy will give you much light on the subject.

Science and the Visible Aura

London Physician Says Every Person Is Endowed With One and That Our Physical Condition Affects Its Coloring.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

IN the oldest religions of earth we find mention of the auras.

Auras and haloes are generally supposed to be crowns of light hovering over the heads of saints.

By practical minded people the aura has long been regarded as a delusion of overwrought sensibilities.

Religious devotees, mediums, fanatics, poets and insane beings were alone considered susceptible to these hallucinations.

Theosophists have always talked of auras as a part of the mental and physical belonging of every human being.

But by the material mind the Theosophist is considered insane. And now comes Science, lagging along, with its proof of what the Theosophists and other advanced souls have long known to be true.

That there is a haze or atmosphere surrounding the human body and differing in the case of each individual, and that its existence is susceptible of physical proof, is the assertion made by Dr. Walter J. Kilner, a London physician, whose investigation of the subject has covered many years.

In a book Dr. Kilner gives the result of his investigations, and invites those interested in the subject to make the same experiments, using the means which he employed to aid the eye in perceiving what he calls the human aura.

Dr. Kilner maintains that he has not only perceived what the clairvoyants have declared they saw, but even more. Not only do people possess auras, according to Dr. Kilner, but their auras, differing in the case of each individual, and very distinctly so in the case of women and men, are probably inherited, he thinks. Then, too, he says the physical condition affects at once the aura.

Whatever value the revelation of auras will have for the scientific world, Dr. Kilner thinks it will lie in this point, for being thus affected by physical conditions, auras will be a distinct aid in diagnosis.

Dr. Kilner gives examples in his book of persons suffering from epilepsy whose auras all exhibited a different outline from those of persons in good health. The healthier a person the more distinct his aura.

"The influence of heredity and temperament upon the aura," says the doctor, "is one of the most fascinating parts of this subject, and at the same time it does not require a prophet to foresee that an inquirer in this direction is likely to reap a big harvest."

Dr. Kilner likens the aura to the rays proceeding from a magnet. When looked at through his screen the magnetic cloud emanating from a magnet appeared distinctly visible in the same manner as did the human aura. He believes that the forces giving rise to the human aura are quite distinct from those producing the magnetic cloud, and that there is more than a single force at work, one producing the outer and another the inner aura.

These forces, he believes, are most probably generated in the body in some such way as the nervous force.

He also lays down the law that the aura is influenced by the will power. He has made many experiments which have gone to prove this, such as telling a person to will that a ray should extend from his finger toward another person. The ray, he says, soon made its appearance, and disappeared directly the patient left off willing.

Dr. Kilner mentions a young woman twenty years old, upon whom he experimented, and whom he asked to shoot rays from her two shoulders, first one and then the other. The beams manifested themselves almost directly, taking an upward and outward direction. She was asked to turn sideways then, and to will a ray to extend from the tip of her nose.

"In this," said the doctor, "she was perfectly successful, as it appeared almost immediately and stretched outward seven or eight inches. This was beyond the external margin of the visible outer aura."

Dr. Kilner lays distinct emphasis on the statement that he is not an occultist, nor does he make pretences to clairvoyancy. What he wants people to understand is that his researches have been entirely physical and that they can be repeated by anyone.

"There cannot be the slightest doubt," he says, "as to the reality of the existence of an aura enveloping human beings, and this will be in a short time a universally accepted fact, now that it can be made visible to any one possessing normal eyesight. It would indeed be strange if the aura did not vary under different circumstances, and we firmly believe that a study of its modifications will show that they will have a diagnostic value."

Now, in the face of these scientific facts, it behooves each one of us to give some thought to the subject of auras.

We need to realize, first of all, that the aura is as much a part of us as our heads or hands. And that its shape and color is largely under our own control.

Long ago the theosophists and clairvoyants said the dark gray or green or muddy brown aura was an evidence of unwholesome conditions of mind and body. Blue and pink and yellow were desirable shades for auras; indicating spirituality, affection and intellect.

Dr. Kilner's book gives three classes of people according to the color of their auras, those whose auras appeared to be blue mixed with gray and those with gray auras. Taking these classifications he examined 100 persons. He found forty in the blue aura class. Of these forty persons none was below the average in mental power, and some were distinctly above it.

Thirty-six were in the second class, with auras showing a combination of blue and gray. Among these were two epileptics and one with meningitis. Seventeen had gray auras, and among these seventeen were two eccentric people, six epileptics, one insane person and three who were mentally dull.

From these observations the doctor deduces the theory that if you have a blue aura you are most apt to be mentally fit, but if your aura is gray you are probably a bit deficient in intellectual power.

Now that science so closely agrees with the seers, we cannot reasonably doubt that psychic people have seen and do see auras. And it renders one a bit uncomfortable to think how many clear seeing eyes may have beheld very ugly auras emanating from us.

If we were given free choice of selecting a hideous or a beautiful head dress, or hat, there would be no hesitation about the one chosen.

We are given this privilege of selecting our auras.

Or at least we are given the privilege and power to change those which may have been given us by inheritance from other lives, or which may have been created by wrong methods of education in this life.

Not only is our aura visible to many clear seeing eyes, and to the eye of science, but its influence is felt by every one.

The dark gray or brown aura sends out a gloomy and depressing influence; and the light, bright colors send out love and cheer and aspiration to all who come in your presence.

And as you color and beautify this aura, you are helping build your body into greater strength, and your brain into greater power.

Think of the aura as an absolute possession, belonging to you, and given you to make beautiful in its appearance and its influence; and so surely as you work toward this result, shall peace and prosperity and health come to you and your power for usefulness increase.

Joy o' Journeying

By LILIAN LAUFERTY

I FARE through lands where mountains are—
Grim hills with shadow overcast;
I plod through vales of settled gloom
Where cold and chill would bind me fast.
But in my heart a little song,
And on my lips a melody—
The path is grim and steep and long,
And some there are who pity me.

But though I fare through lonely lands
Of ice or Summer's copper glow,
I have a joy that lights my path—
The world is good where I may go.
Since ever in my heart is song,
Because my lips know melody,
I find life glad and hope beats strong,
So none there are need pity me.
